COLLINS TESTIFIES OF DYNAMITE PLOT

THE TRIPLE TIE

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service

Begin this great story today if you failed to do so yesterday. Read the synopsis of the first instalment printed on page 12, or, better yet, get a copy of yesterday's paper and read it from the beginning.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"I'LL be perfectly candid with you, Mr. Kelly. I don't believe you have a chance in the world to make good on it. At the same time you never can tell. I make it a rule never to pass up a man until I have had a chance to look him over. If you want to stick around for awhile I have no objection to your doing so. But you see I am lukewarm and skeptical."

"That's all right, Mr. Smith; I don't blame you, but I'll take my chances," replied Kelly with a smile.

"My players will not be reporting for Spring practice before ten days or two weeks," continued the manager, "in the meantime, as I don't want them to have anything on me, I'm going to get in condition before they arrive. I'm going to start in this afternoon. The sun is out and the grounds will be dried out by 2 o'clock. If you want to come around at that time, you are welcome to do so."

"Thank you; I will be here," replied the applicant, "As my clothes seem to be dry, I'll slip them on."

The manager picked up his copy of "Sporting Life" and proceeded to absorb some more baseball "dope" while the other dressed.

"Much obliged, Mr. Smith," said Kelly, when he was ready for the street. "I'll see you this afternoon."

"One moment," said the manager, "You said you came from the mountain district?"

"Yes, sir."

"Born there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Lived there all your life?"

"Yes, sir."

"Never been to Atlanta or any other city before?"

"No, sir."

"Never saw a ball game?"

"No, sir."

"You don't talk like a Southerner."

"No, sir."

"You, er—all right. See you later. So long."

Gordon Kelly disappeared through the doorway with a long, swinging stride. Instantly Whiskey came into the clubhouse by another entrance.

"There goes a mysterioso for you, Whiskey," said Bill Smith, cocking his feet on the stove again.

STORK PREVENTS SAILING ON CYMRIC

Mrs. Olga Prombo, a Polish resident of South Boston, appeared at the White Star liner Cymric's gangplank today in the hope of spending the Summer in Poland. The stork is expected. The ship's doctor grew nervous with the fear that the uncertain bird might appear on the passage across. So Mrs. Prombo was left at the pier. She wept at her disappointment. The Cymric carried out 701 cabin passengers and 280 steerage.

CALLS DOG'S MEALS BETTER THAN HIS

ATLANTA, Ga., May 20.—Opposing his wife's divorce suit, A. T. Pate declared that she neglected their little daughter to take care of her pet dog. "His meals cost more than mine did," said Pate.

WORLD'S LARGEST WOMAN VERY ILL

CHICAGO, May 20.—Mary Perry, said to be the heaviest woman in the world, is critically ill. She weighs nearly 600 pounds.

EXPECT JAP NAVY MAY ACT

The Hingham naval magazine, which handles a big percentage of all the shells and powder used by the navy, has increased its force of expert ordnance handlers during the last few days, it was learned today. The new men were set to work filling shells for the navy guns. It is believed the step was the result of rush orders from Washington.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Japanese are buying liberally of wheat and flour on the Pacific coast. Japanese steamers for Oriental points have reduced freight rates from $4.50 to $3.50 per ton, from June 1 to September 1. Many flour mills are running on Japanese business.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The crisis in the Japanese situation has been reached. This was admitted in high official circles today. It was also learned from authoritative military sources that army and navy officials will not be surprised if Japan makes a naval demonstration as its next step in its effort to force the issue on the California land law question.

The administration is awaiting a quick reply from Japan in answer to the federal government's note forwarded to Ambassador Chinda immediately after the signing of the California land bill by Governor Johnson.

From facts learned today this reply from the Tokio government is almost certain to be of a nature which will create a serious international impasse. It is known that it is Japan's intention to pursue a firm policy" in dealing with the United States and in insisting on the absolute equality of Japanese and whites.

As a result of this information, the fear became general late afternoon that its firm policy course will lead Japan into a stand where she cannot yield an inch without "loss of face" and will at the same time make it impossible for the United States to concede anything. This makes the situation today all the more acutely critical.

FORESTERS OPEN STATE CONVENTION AT FITCHBURG

FITCHBURG, May 20.—A three days' convention of the State Foresters of America opened here today with about 400 delegates from all over the State present. Grand Chief Ranger George James of Newton welcomed the delegates and Mayor Frank O. Hardy greeted the members in behalf of the city.

A high tribute was paid to the late Daniel Fitzpatrick, past grand chief ranger.

Among the many candidates for chief ranger, William F. Duncan of Fitchburg appears to be the favorite.

Tomorrow night the delegates will participate in a big street parade through the city.

We Have "the Punch"

Theatrical managers are always looking for plays that have, as they phrase it, "the punch."
—MISS AD TAKER

Advertisers know that the AMERICAN has "the punch." It brings results quickly.

FLAGLER DIES IN FLORIDA

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 21 Henry M. Flagler, wealthy railroad builder and owner, who has been seriously ill for some time, died here today.

Mr. Flagler died at 10 o'clock. The end was peaceful. To those at the bedside it seemed that the sick man died in his sleep. Among those with him were Mrs. Flagler and Mrs. Harry Harkness Flagler.

The body will be placed in the Mausoleum on the Flagler plot at St. Augustine.

BOY HAS 5-INCH TOES REMOVED

NEW YORK, May 20.—Elmer March, aged nineteen, went to the Polyclinic Hospital and said he wanted a few toes removed. Examination showed that the small toe of each foot was about five inches long, and curved across the top of the others. An amputation was performed, and March went home to get other members of his family, who, he says, are afflicted in the same way.

HARVARD COURSE BALLOT IS SLOW

The 600 seniors who have received postal cards from the Harvard Illustrated Magazine requesting them to state which were the most unsatisfactory courses they have had are hanging fire in the matter of reply. The general opinion is that it would be better to wait until after the examination results have been announced, particularly before picking the courses they consider the worst.

SISTER CONTESTS WILL OF RECLUSE

BROCKTON, May 20.—Mrs. Maria Goward, contestant of the will of her brother, William Howard, who recently died a recluse in Providence and left about $500,000, appeared in the Probate Court today to claim her part of the estate. Howard cut off his sister as he thought she was wealthy enough. Mrs. Goward claims that her brother was not of sound mind.

BREAD RIOTS IN PATERSON OPEN

PATERSON, N. J., May 20.—Bread riots were begun today by famished silk mill strikers. A band of idle men stole milk bottles and bread from door steps. Others raided grocery stores. Shop keepers called the police and fighting ensued. Fifty-seven arrests were made before 9 o'clock.

CAPT. BARTLETT ON NEW POLAR TRIP

SAYS BREEN TOLD HIM "MILLIONAIRES ARE BEHIND ME"

Dennis J. Collins, indicted with William M. Wood, the wool magnate, and Frederick E. Atteaux in the Lawrence dynamite conspiracy case, testified as a State's witness today. Two points stood out in his testimony.

He was asked by District Attorney Pelletier:

"Did Breen tell you that Wood and other millionaires were behind him, and that he would be Mayor of the city?"

Collins answered, "Yes."

TOLD COLLINS TO "WATCH THE PAPERS."

Earlier in his testimony, after he described how Breen and he took the dynamite to Lawrence, he said:

"I asked what it all meant. Breen answered:

"'What does it mean? It means that I'll be Mayor of this city some day. Man, there are millions behind me in this.

"'Do you know Wood? Well, then—just you watch the papers tomorrow. You'll see what it means.'"

Daniel Coakley, attorney for Atteaux, asked Collins:

"Have you been promised immunity for testifying here?"

Collins answered "No."

"What did your lawyers tell you?" asked Mr. Coakley.

"They said that Mr. Pelletier never sends a man to jail who testifies for the government. They advised me to tell the truth and trust the District Attorney for the rest."

Got $50 from Breen.

Collins said Breen gave him $50 in all $25 on two different occasions. He said on another occasion, Charley Breen, John Jr., brother, came to his home in Cambridge, gave him $18, and told him to "cheer it."

He testified that Breen never spoke of dynamite, but always called the contents of the packages they took to Lawrence, "the juice." He said Breen called the whole thing "a joke." He said when their work in Lawrence was done, Breen dismissed him and said:

"Keep your nose clean! Mum's the word!"

He said Charles Breen dropped what was left of the dynamite in a lake in Lawrence. He told how, on the train on the way to Lawrence, he, carrying the dynamite, slipped and dropped it.

OPEN SUIT TO DISSOLVE SHOE MACHINERY CO.

The government's suit for dissolution of the United Shoe Company as a corporation acting in restraint of its own trade and that of shoe manufacturers, began in the United States District Court today before Judges Putnam, Dodge and Brown. In spite of Attorney Charles Cutler's objection at a previous hearing, the court ruled that the trial should be public.

12-POUND BOY FOR 70-YEAR-OLD 'PA'

PHILADELPHIA, May 20. A lusty twelve-pound baby boy has arrived at the home of Leo Quadenfeld, the seventy-year-old contractor who was married last August to Marie di Giacomo, a fifteen-year-old Italian girl, who had been adopted by his first wife, now dead. When they married last Summer the neighbors mobbed the contractor's home.

NAPOLEON'S HAT TO GO UNDER HAMMER

LONDON, May 20.—Among the relics to be sold at Sotheby's in June will be Nelson's christening shirt, a set of boxwood draughtsmen used by Napoleon during his voyage to Elba and the hat he wore when "first comed."

DEFENDS FOR MEDICAL PRACTICE.

WORCESTER, May 20.—John Joewicz, said to be from Boston, was arrested here today for practising medicine without a license. He was bailed in $1000.

FITCHBURG BODY FOUND IN RIVER.

FITCHBURG, May 20.—The body of James Buckley, 55, who has been missing since Thursday, was found floating in the Nashua River today. It is supposed by the police that he fell into the river.

COURT-MARTIAL FOR U. S. BORDER GUARD.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., May 20.—A private attached to the Ninth Cavalry, U. S. A., has been arrested for firing to fire upon an automobile which crossed the border Sunday bearing parts of an aeroplane which is to be used by Mexican Constitutionalists. He will probably be court-martialed.

MEASLES CLOSES DEDHAM SCHOOL

Twelve cases of measles were today found among the pupils of the first and second grades of the Ames Grammar School, Washington street, Dedham. The school was ordered closed for ten days.

TURLEY LEADS FOR PUBLIC PRINTER

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson has about made up his mind to appoint W. V. Turley of Chattanooga, Tenn., to the post of Public Printer, which pays $5,000 a year.

MAN, 67, LOSES JOB AND ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Sumner N. Curtis, sixty-seven, committed suicide early today by inhaling illuminating gas in the lodging house at No. 16 Pinckney street, Beacon Hill.

Curtis worked at No. 11 Purchase street. Yesterday he was told his services were no longer required. He returned home and broke the news to his wife. He was too old to keep his job.

As dawn was creeping into the windows today he went to the bath room and locked himself in. Another lodger in the house smelled gas and traced it to the bath room. He telephoned Bernard Hill, the landlord, who hurried to the house from the Hotel Commonwealth. The bath room door was broken open. Curtis was lying on the floor clutching a rubber tube in his hand, the other attached to an open gas cock. Curtis was unconscious and died in an ambulance on the way to the Relief Hospital.

MAYOR AND WALSH FIELD DAY GUESTS

Mayor Fitzgerald and Lieutenant-Governor Walsh are two of the guests expected at the field day of St. John's Preparatory School at Danvers, June 17. The feature of the day will be a ten-mile Marathon, which will draw some of the best known B. A. A. runners. Miss Ethel Smith of Haverhill is arranging athletic contests for girls.

Caruso is Called "Singing Machine" By Throat Expert

LONDON, May 20.—Dr. William Lloyd, a famous throat specialist, who recently examined Caruso, declares he is unique among tenors. As a singing machine he combines to a greater extent than any other singer Dr. Lloyd has ever examined the physical characteristics necessary for the perfect production of vocal sounds almost unlimited in volume.

Said Dr. Lloyd today:

"His vocal tube is half an inch longer than that of any other tenor I have examined. This accounts for the extraordinary compass, pitch and volume of Caruso's voice.

"His vocal chords are an eighth of an inch longer, with extraordinary vibratile qualities.

"Caruso's vocal chords, when singing C sharp, reach the phenomenal rate vibration of 550 per second. Finally, Caruso's epiglottis is so formed that it acts as a unique sounding board."

MOTORIST FINED $50 ON EACH OF TWO CHARGES

Joseph J. Doyle of No. 42 Cameron street, Roxbury, was fined $50 in the Dedham District Court today by Judge Grover for reckless driving of an automobile and $50 more for failing to stop after causing damage to property. According to the evidence, Doyle was riding with two companions in an automobile belonging to Louis K. Liggett, the Boston druggist, when he collided with a livery outfit belonging to Thomas Sutton of Needham, damaging the buggy and injuring the horse.

In the Brookline court yesterday he was charged with unlawfully appropriating an automobile. This case was continued to May 23.

GETS 'COP' TO MAKE MAID SERVE MEAL

YONKERS, May 20.—Patrolman Ryer was called to the home of Mrs. M. F. Kenny, a wealthy woman in the fashionable Van Cortlandt Park avenue section to prevent her maid from going on strike at mealtime. The domestic refused an increase in pay, tried to walk out, but Mrs. Kenny demanded that she work two more days as her contract required.

BATON FOR J. A. CALLAHAN.

Joseph A. Callahan, esquire of the Brookline Lodge of Elks, was presented with a baton, inlaid with silver and gold and fashioned from the wood of the old Wabash at a meeting of the lodge in Brookline town hall. Edward A. McEttrick, past exalted ruler, made the presentation.

GEN. MENOCAL NEW PRESIDENT OF THE CUBANS

HAVANA, May 20.—Military precautions were taken here today to prevent any outbreaks on the occasion of the inauguration of Juan Mario Menocal, who succeeds Senator Gomez as President of Cuba. Machine guns were placed at strategic points.

Assistant Secretary of State Dudley Field Malone brought a message to the new executive from President Wilson.

A new era is promised for Cuba under the administration of General Menocal, who is avowedly pro-American. He will try to induce foreign capital to come here.

General Menocal sent the following message to the people of the United States: "I have stated many times, and I now take advantage of the opportunity to repeat, that as chief executive of the Cuban republic my energies will be devoted to fostering and cementing the Cuban republic still more closely to the United States."

Electric Vehicle Workers Open Two Days' Convention

The two days' convention of the New England Electric Vehicle Manufacturers and Allied Interests opened today with a reception and registration at tre Engineers' Club, Arlington street, corner of Commonwealth avenue. The program includes speeches by manufacturers and owners, an outing to Lynn to inspect the General Electric Company, and a shore dinner at the Relay House, Nahant, tomorrow night

The first session of the afternoon was devoted to "Electric Vehicle Progress," a paper being read by Fred M. Kimball on "New England an an Electric Vehicle Field."

From 4 to 6 p. m. a review was held of Boston's electric vehicle in front of the club's headquarters in which over 300 pleasure and commercial cars participated.

E. S. Mansfield is chairman of the convention and O. G. Draper secretary.

5,000 GUARD GOLF LINKS FROM SUFFRAGETTES

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 20.—This little town is almost in a state of siege as the result of threats uttered by the militant suffragettes that they will destroy the putting greens and thus render play impossible in the world's amateur golf championship next week.

The most intense excitement prevails among the townspeople, who depend largely for their prosperity upon the golf links. A vigilance committee with 5,000 volunteers will guard the greens night and day.

LORD FITZGERALD JILTS SHOW GIRL BY PUBLIC NOTICE

LONDON, May 20.—The romance of "when we were twenty-one" that has existed between Lord Edward FitzGerald, brother of the Duke of Leinster, premier peer of Ireand, and May Etheridge, the "neat ittle, sweet little" pajama girl of the Shaftesbury Theatre, has come to a rude termination.

The boyish nobleman is out with a statement to the press declaring that the reports of his engagement to the equally youthful actress are false.

STABBED, BUT LANDS PRISONER

LOWELL, May 20.—After being badly stabbed in the face and neck, Policeman Samuel J. Bigelow early today chased and fired one shot at a fleeing man on Middlesex street. Bigelow arrested Joseph Bromafski, and locked him up on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Then Bigelow went to St. John's Hospital in an ambulance. Fifteen stitches were taken in his wounds. Bigelow claimed Bromafski had attacked him.

Woman Changes Mind and Dashes Off Ocean Liner

Ephraim Davis Foster of Pawtucket has a surprise in store for him. His wife, Mrs. Annie E. Foster, who came to Boston last night and boarded the Cymric as a cabin passenger to go to England to spend the Summer, exercised woman's prerogative to change her mind. This she did in a most dramatic way.

Just as the final whistles were being blown for "all visitors ashore," Mrs. Foster went into her stateroom, dashed her belongings into two suit cases and rushed down the gangplank just as the sailors were pulling it ashore.

She told the astounded White Star officials that she simply could not leave her husband, and was going back to Pawtucket to spend the Summer with him.

Cymric Sails While Maine Trio, Lost in Boston, Seek Dock

Daniel Driscoll, his wife and their two-year-old child, of Sanford, Me., came to Boston today to board the White Star liner Cymric to go to Queenstown to spend the Summer in Ireland. But being unacquainted with Boston's tortuous "cowpath" streets, they wandered around and around through the North End, finally getting lost entirely until a big, open-hearted Irishman met them and he volunteered to guide them to the dock.

The guide and his charges were too late, however, for when they reached the dock the Cymric was out in the stream. Somebody suggested a tug and following the liner. But the officials did not dare to do this on account of the child. Mrs. Driscoll wept at the dock. They will sail on the next steamer for Ireland.

WIFE TELLS OF CASH DEAL TO GET DIVORCE

Testimony tending to show that there had been collusion between Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Whitney of Brookline in his attempt to secure a divorce two years ago, was brought out before Judge Morton in the Suffolk County Divorce Court today, where the second case brought by Mr. Whitney against his wife is being heard.

During this testimony the judge remarked that there was a serious question in his mind whether the divorce should be granted even if the act charged against the defendant should be fully proven.

Mrs. Whitney testified that two years ago, just previous to the first divorce action she and her husband entered into an agreement whereby he was to pay her $12.50 per week for three years. In return she was not to contest his suit which was to be brought on the ground of cruel treatment.

She also testified that just before the present action was instigated that her husband and his attorney, J. Richard Larkin, came to her home on Humboldt avenue and offered to pay her $150 if she would go to Watertown, N. Y., and not contest the present suit.

SENTENCE ANHUT FRIDAY.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Sentencing of John N. Anhut, the lawyer convicted of offering a bribe in connection with a plot to free Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan Asylum, was deferred today until Friday.

Jerry Watson Sad; Gives Priest's Suit as Whist Prize

Councilman James A. (Jerry) Watson declared today that henceforth when he distributes prizes at a whist party he will know beforehand just what the awards are to be.

Today "Jerry," usually jovial, witty and carefree, is a striking replica (in feelings) of the Leader of the Glooms.

It happened that a new suit was delivered to the Rev. William A. Conway at Boston College, Newton, while a May party for the institution was in progress. Father Conway laid the suit, in its box, behind one of the booth counters. Later he intended to slip into one of the college buildings and change suits. Councilman Watson had chosen the same spot as a hiding place for the prizes. When he made the distribution Father Conway was minus a suit.

SCHOONERS BLOCK DRAW, HOLDING UP 500 COMMUTERS

Two lumber schooners played a little joke on 500 or 600 commuters from South Boston and Dorchester today. The schooners approached the draw in the Dorchester avenue bridge during the rush hours. The draw opened and a long line of cars was blocked. Then one schooner got caught in the draw.

Many of the passengers hurried back to Broadway and Dorchester avenue, and took cars over the Broadway extension bridge. But the same two schooners, proceeding leisurely up the river, forced that draw to open. Those who stayed in their original seats beat the impatient ones to town, although all were a half to three-quarters of an hour late at work.

MOTOR CYCLE KILLS MAN IN EVERETT PARK

James W. Woodworth of No. 75 Winthrop avenue, Revere, was killed early today while at work on the Revere Beach parkway in Everett. The police say he was run down by a motorcycle. R. M. Linnell, the motorcyclist, was injured.

Workmen summoned aid and the men were taken in a police ambulance to the Whidden Memorial Hospital. Woodworth died on the way.

Who'll Be the Next Great Story Writer?

Will Miss Roseboro' Find Him?

Some place in these 48 states—perhaps in a little village or hamlet—lives an obscure young woman or man who will soon rise to fame as a short-story writer.

One single story—a masterpiece of fiction—will turn the trick. But it will have to be a mighty original and interesting story to win an audience beside the inimitable creations of our greatest present-day writers.

Who will the next genius be?

Collier's Weekly has set about to find her (or him). And, realizing it takes genius to discover genius, Collier's has engaged the famed short-story critic, Miss Viola Roseboro'.

Miss Roseboro' is the Official Critic of the Authors' League of America.

It was she who discovered Rex Beach and O. Henry. She was among the first to encourage and recognize the early efforts of Myra Kelly, Arthur Train, Stewart Edward White, Mary Stewart Cutting, Josephine Dodge Daskam and Booth Tarkington.

To aid Miss Roseboro' in her undertaking, Collier's has offered $7,500 as a bonus for the best short stories. This to be given in addition to the usual liberal price paid for short stories.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Mark Sullivan and Miss Ida Tarbell will be the judges in this Contest.

Out Today in Collier's:

The Pipe Dream—By Mary Brecht Pulver. For islands of the sea, shipwrecks, an old love and an island girl—these be proper matters to make the hero feel he is pipe-dreaming; yet for us Mrs. Pulver gives them all an effect of reality as well as romance.

"Is It to Eat You Live? Yes" —By Grace M. Sissons. This is a little bit of life gotten at first-hand, and showing its authenticity in the grip the child characters get on your laughter and your tears.

"The Ghost That Got the Button" —By Irma Peixotto. Another army story by the author of last week's good story, "The Privilege of the Hero."

The Golden Flask—By Sax Rohmer. Fu Manchu again. Here we come up against the most stupendous of Eastern secrets—one that has baffled the West always, but whose mystery has never been exploded. Lord Southery is dead and then he is alive, but we grow to feel that that is a less matter than whether or not the terrible Fu Manchu is at last trapped.

Back to Life—By John E. Lathrop. Mr. Lathrop supplies the thrills in his own further description, "The Story of My Victory Over Tuberculosis." Hundreds of thousands who have been under the shadow of the great modern plague, either through their own afflictions or those of their friends, will hang eagerly upon this simply told but eloquent narrative.

'HOW MANY CHILDREN CAN MODERN WOMAN REAR' IS DISCUSSED BY MOTHERS

By ANGELA MORGAN.

"How many children is the modern woman capable of rearing, with full justice to herself and them?"

I asked twelve mothers of the Child Welfare Congress now in session at the Copley-Plaza, to discuss this question for the AMERICAN.

Mrs. Arthur Birney, corresponding secretary of the Congress, and sister-in-law of the late founder, Mrs. Theodore T. Birney, did not hesitate to say that she thought nine children made just the right kind of a family for these days or any other.

Mrs. Birney, who lives in Washington, is herself the mother of nine children and is proud of it.

Here are the views of these mothers as given to the AMERICAN:

Mrs. William T. Carter, of Philadelphia, honorary vice president:

"I do not approve of large families today. The woman of this period is not physically able to stand the strain of the families our grandmothers had. The age makes such huge demands upon a woman's vitality, mentally and physically, that the woman is rare who can with full justice to herself and the children, rear a large family. I think two or three are a big enough responsibility for the average mother today."

Mrs. Carter has nine grandchildren and is a picturesque and graceful woman, a striking figure among the officers of the assemblage.

Mrs. George Alfred Fletcher of Radnor, Pa., of the Executive Committee:

"I heartily approve of large families, whether for the woman of today or of past generations. I have reared only four children, but I would gladly have welcomed as many more. I think a woman should have as many children as her means will permit.

Mrs. John D. Moore, State organizer of women's clubs in New Hampshire:

"To me the point of this discussion lies in this one question, Can the mother give each child the time and attention it requires? A mother should have as large a family as possible if she is situated so she can do this. Otherwise, it is not fair to herself or the children to have many little ones."

Mrs. Moore has three children and there were six years between each one, so she feels she has been able to grant to each individual the training best suited to its temperament and character.

Mrs. Clara Hill Park, leader in the fight for widow's pensions:

"If a mother has the means to give her children every advantage for culture and advancement she is justified in having a large family. Otherwise, she is not."

Mrs. Milton P. Higgins of Worcester, Mass., president of the Massachusetts branch:

"It is a far cry from our forefathers' day to our own, and the ideals and needs of this age are entirely different from those of the past. What we need is our civilization is quality, not quantity. W want good citizens, rather than too numerous citizens. The mother of today cannot do justice to the large family her mother had before her."

Mrs. Higgins has had four children, two boys and two girls, and has seven grandchildren.

Mrs. William N. Irving of West Roxbury, assistant secretary of the Boston Home School Association and president of the Robert G. Shaw Association:

"The woman of today should have a large family if she has the means to nourish and train that family properly. Can you think of anything more terrible than not to be able to nourish one's own child? Better one or two well nourished children than six who must suffer for lack of their divine right to the best living conditions."

Mrs. W. E. Howe of Wollaston, chairman of the Committee on Arrangements:

"The home where there are children is the most beautiful home in the world. The woman who has the means to rear a large family is indeed blessed among women. The children are the great middle class are the happiest of all, for they are the ones whose parents live with them and for them in the truest sense of the term."

Mrs. Margaret Stannard, chairman of the Hospitality Committee and head of the Garland School for Home Training:

"It is a woman's highest duty to give the best of herself to her children; therefore, she should not have more children than she has strength and means to train. The woman of today should not be censured for preferring a few children—perhaps even one or two—to the numerous offspring of former times. It is an evidence of greater intelligence, higher standards as to what her obligations are toward the race."

Today's Beauty Recipes

By Mme. D'Mille.

"A woman feels like crying when she finds her comb full of hair. Failing hair, and faded, dull and brittle hair means that the scalp is harboring a parasite that destroys hair. Mother's Shampoo removes these parasites and puts the scalp in clean, wholesome and healthy condition, so that the hair will grow luxuriantly.

"Delatone is so popular as a superfluous hair remover because its use does not dissolve or roughen the skin. To remove hair on the face or forearms cover the surface for a minute or two with a little paste made by dissolving delatone and water. When the paste is removed the hairs will be gone.

"Headaches, pains in back or joints, rheumatism, sore muscles and other aches yield to Mother's Salve, which penetrates the pores and relieves almost instantly.

"Every woman is responsible for her complexion, and a good complexion is woman's greatest charm. To correct facial blemishes, remove muddy spots and make the skin fresh, fair and lovely, gently massage the face, neck and arms each morning with a lotion made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel."—Advertisement.

CAME TO WED; GIRL SUES FOR COST OF TRIP

The suit for $300 by Miss Margaret Killeen of No. 44 Cobden street, known as the "Maid of Athlone," against John Gallagher of No. 99 Roxbury street, following the breaking of their engagement, is for expenses incurred, she said today, in coming to this country to become the bride of Gallagher.

The courtship of Miss Killeen and Gallagher covered a period of seven years. In Athlone, where her mother was a woman of means, Miss Killeen first met Gallagher. When he came to this country they corresponded. Last August Gallagher wrote for Miss Killeen to come to America.

"I proposed an early marriage, Gallagher said, "but Miss Killeen refused to marry me as long as I remained with my folks and sister. She wanted a home of her own. As I was the sole support for them I refused to leave them."

Gallagher says he is not worrying. He declares he will continue to support his parents, his sick sister and himself on his $10 a week, and remain a bachelor.

"I'll Fool You Doctors Yet," Says Poisoned Banker

MACON, Ga., May 20.—Slight hope for the recovery of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker and real estate dealer, who swallowed a bichloride of mercury tablet by mistake last week was entertained by his physicians today, despite their previous decision that there was no possible chance for him. The sick banker sat up in bed almost all of yesterday.

"I guess I'm going to fool you doctors yet," he told one of his physicians.

WOMAN'S BODY IN RESERVOIR; FEAR SUICIDE

The body of Mrs. Sophia Zamore, aged forty-eight, of No. 70 Dana street, Cambridge, was found floating in the Arlington Heights reservoir, just across the Lexington line, early today. The police believe it is a case of suicide.

Mrs. Zamore has been suffering for over a year from nervous prostration, according to her husband, Herman Zamore, a cabinetmaker, but lately has appeared in better health. Monday she visited her sister-in-law, Hilda Zamore of No. 15 Westminster avenue, Arlington Heights. Mrs Zamore says the woman left apparently in good spirits, saying she was going home.

PLANTED "BUNDLES" FOR BREEN, DECLARES COLLINS AT WOOD TRIAL

Sensation in Conspiracy Trial as One of Defendants Is Called by the Prosecution.

against his knee. He didn't know what it was at that time, he declared.

He described "planting" the dynamite in Lawrence—how he and Breen drove around in Breen's sleigh. He said Breen would wait outside and he would go in and leave the package with word that someone would call for it later.

Hurlburt, attorney for Wood, did not cross-examine Collins. Hurlburt stated that he did not feel the testimony concerned Mr. Wood, his client. Attorney Oakley, representing Attaiaty, cross-examined. Collins was on the stand just short of two hours. Inspector William J. Rooney followed him as a witness.

Collins spoke in a low, clear voice. He seemed as disinterested as any spectator. He described in detail how he had met Breen in a saloon on Court street. He said Breen asked him—Collins—to help him out.

They talked for a while. Collins agreed to help. Then Breen gave him $25 to $5 bills.

Collins testified that Breen had a great roll of bills in his pocket—that he dropped some—and that practically all were "yellowbacks."

With Breen, Collins said, he met two men on the corner of Washington and Franklin streets. These two men gave Breen a bundle. In Newspaper row, Collins added, Breen set this bundle down while he lighted a cigarette, then asked Collins to carry it.

Demanded Explanation.

They went to the North Station, according to Collins, and by train to Lawrence. There they went to Breen's undertaking establishment, Collins testified, and into a back room. They opened the bundle. Collins declared there were some "sticks" in it. Breen, he said, called them "sticks" "the juice."

Collins said he was puzzled. When they had wrapped the "sticks" in different packages, they went out and got in Breen's sleigh.

It was then, Collins declared, that he insisted on an explanation.

Here is Collins' testimony:

Q.—By District Attorney Pelletier)—How long have you known John J. Breen? A.—About fifteen years.

Q.—Did you meet him on the nineteenth day of January, 1912? A.—Yes, on January 19.

Met Breen in Saloon.

Q.—Where did you meet him? A.—In a saloon on Court street, in Boston.

Q.—What took place? A.—Mr. Breen asked me to have a drink. We went down stairs and took two or three drinks together. He then asked me how long since I had been in Lawrence. I told him not for quite a little while.

He then told me he wanted me to help him do something. He said he wanted me to carry a bundle to Lawrence for him. I said all right. Later he went to the 'phone. When he got back he said the parties he was to meet were slow.

We then went out, took luncheon, and later went into a saloon near the corner of Franklin and Washington streets. Breen then gave me $25 in $5 bills and told me he wanted me to hold my end up.

Q.—Where did he get this money. A.—He took it out of his pocket. It was a big roll of bills.

Spoke of Another $25 "Coming."

Q.—How much was in that roll. A.—I don't know. It was a big roll and the smallest I saw was a $5 bill.

Q.—What happened after that. A.—Breen told me that there was another $25 coming, after we did the job.

Q.—Did you get a good look at this roll? A.—Yes, when we were in the saloon it dropped out of his pocket. The bartender told him to pick it up. It was a big roll of money with a yellow back on the outside.

Q.—What happened after that. A.—About 7:30 Breen phoned to two different people. He then told me he didn't know what was the matter with them, they were so slow.

Q.—Was anything said to you about a telephone number? A.—Yes, he told me to phone to a certain place in Newton.

Q.—Did you make a memorandum of that number? A.—Yes, I marked down in a little book that I carry for making memorandums about dogs. I phoned to Newton from a pay station in the subway. I didn't hear any conversation Breen had with the parties he telephoned to around that time.

Breen's People "Awful Slow."

Q.—Did Mr. Breen report to you anything about his conversation with the people he was trying to reach over the telephone, if anyone had been delayed? A.—Yes, he said that they were awfully slow.

Q.—Where is that saloon located—the last one you mentioned? A.—Near the corner of Washington and Franklin streets.

Q.—What did you do after that? A.—I stood on the corner with Mr. Breen and later two men came down the street.

One of them was carrying a package in his arms.

Q.—Did you know either of the men. A.—Not at the time.

Identifies Man in Court.

Q.—Would you recognize either of them if you saw them now?

Collins standing on his tiptoes and pointing with his fingers to a man in the courtroom, said:

"That's one of the men. I learned later that his name was Rice. I didn't know him at the time."

Q.—Who was carrying the package? A.—Mr. Rice.

Q.—What did he do with it? A.—After talking with Mr. Breen and laughing over something that was said, Rice gave the package to Breen and the two men walked away.

Q.—Did Breen go with you to the North station. A.—No, I carried the package to the North station while he went another way. We met at the North station later and he bought two tickets for Lawrence.

Q.—After you got to Lawrence what happened? A.—Breen got off one end of the train and I got off the other. We met outside the station and went to his undertaking rooms. Finally we reached his bedroom.

Told Him to "Watch the Papers."

Q.—What did you do with the package? A.—I put it on one of the two beds that were in the room, as I was told to do.

Q.—Did Breen say what was in the package? A.—When I asked him what it was he told me it was "the juice." Afterward he pulled a small package out of his pocket.

Q.—Did he tell you anything further about it? A.—Yes, he told me to watch the papers next day and I would understand the whole joke.

Q.—What took place then? A.—We opened the big package and I wrapped up six bundles in old papers. Breen wrapped up several other bundles, putting something from the smaller package into them.

Q.—What did you do after this. A.—I helped Breen carry the bundles downstairs, where we put them in his sleigh.

Q.—Did he say anything to you at this time? A.—Yes. I asked him what it all meant. He said:

"What does it mean? It means that I'll be Mayor of this city some day. Man, there are millions behind me in this.

"Do you know Wood? Well then—just you watch the papers tomorrow. You'll see what it means."

Q.—Did he mention dynamite. A.—No, he simply said "five" bundles of juice."

Q.—How many sticks of dynamite were there in the bundle? A.—I did not count them.

Q.—How many bundles were there? A.—Six; three were larger than the other three.

Referred to Wood of Woollen Trust.

Q.—What conversation did you have with Breen? A.—He said, "do you know Wood of the American Woolen Company?" I said, "no." "Have you ever seen him?" I said "no." Then he said, 'you'll see the joke soon.'"

Q.—What else was said? A.—I do not remember anything else.

Q.—Did he mention Ayer being back of him? A.—I think that he did mention that name.

Q.—When did he mention Mr. Wood's name? A.—In the conversation which I have quoted.

Q.—What else was said in the sleigh? A.—Nothing much. We drove up Oak street and he told me to put one of the bundles in a house there. I took it in and told the fellow in the house that somebody would call for it later.

Q.—What time was that. A.—About 4 o'clock.

Q.—Where did you go then? A.—To a printing shop. Breen told me to leave another bundle there. I took the bundle, but found that nobody was in the shop and brought it back to the sleigh. I told Breen they nobody was in. He said 'That's all right.'

Q.—Did you didn't leave the bundle at that printing shop that night? A.—No.

Q.—Where did you go then? A.—We drove in the sleigh and Breen met a fellow on the street. He asked this fellow where Ettor was speaking. The fellow mentioned some hall, but remarked that Ettor had got through speaking. Breen said we would drive along to the hall anyway. This hall or building is on Chestnut street. It was closed. Breen said he wished he could get a package into that hall.

Q.—Then where did you go? A.—To the cemetery. Breen told me to go to a certain point. I found the snow deep, and the crust broke under my feet, so I left it not so far in as I was directed. When I returned to the sleigh, he asked, "Did you leave it?" and I said "Yes."

Q.—Was it at the Holland sandbank that you left the bundle? A.—I couldn't say.

Q.—Did Breen mention anything about Holland? A.—No.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—We drove back to Breen's place, and he put the bundles, which we carried back with us, up stairs in his shop.

Collins then told how Breen hid the other bundles on a shelf in his shop.

"He spent the night with Simon Ryan, who was later arrested in connection with the case, in the Essex House."

Left Bundle in Cobbler's Shop.

Q.—What did you do next morning; A.—I went to the drug store.

Q.—Did Breen come? A.—Yes, about 9 o'clock. He told me I would have to take another bundle to the Oak street place. I said "all right." He gave me a package (This was the morning of January 19). I went to the place, but found too many people around, so I left it in the cobbler's shop next door. I told the fellow that somebody would call for it later. He put the bundle on a shelf near him. It looked like a package of shoes.

Q.—Were there any shoes in the bundle? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who put them in the package? A.—Mr. Breen.

Q.—Did you go to the cobbler's shop? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you meet Breen? A.—After I left the shop. I met him up the street. He asked me if I had put the bundle there. I told him I had. He said, "All right, I'll see you later." Then he went away. About an hour later he returned. He said, "I thought you said you put the bundle there. It ain't here. You lied." I told him I had placed it where I said. He said, "Jump in the sleigh and show me." We drove to the place and I pointed it out.

That was the last time I saw him until he gave me $25 and told me to go home. That was about 6 o'clock, January 19.

THREE PARTIES UNITE IN FIGHT FOR INITIATIVE

The initiative and referendum was debated in the House of Representatives today, Democrats, Progressives and Republicans uniting in the fight for the measure.

Representative John F. Meaney of Blackstone, the minority leader, led the advocates of the proposition.

"Organized privilege has been fighting this principle for years. It has furnished the campaign funds for the opposition. It financed the attempts made in Oregon to secure a verdict from the court declaring the initiative and referendum unconstitutional. But the day of organized privilege is passing. The people are awakening to their rights and every public official who will stand in the way of such a righteous measure will be swept aside in the coming election."

At the conclusion of Representative Meaney's speech, Republicans, Democrats and Bull Moose applauded vigorously.

Representative Benjamin F. Haines of Medford, a Republican, and Representative Charles H. Webster of Northboro, Bull Moose, urged the amendment.

Representatives Underhill of Somerville, Kinney of Boston and Sherburne of Brookline, Republicans, opposed the amendment.

GOLDEN haired six-months old boy left on doorsteps of former Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham's house in Beacon street.

Who Left a Baby on Frothingham's Front Doorstep?

Friends of former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham are asking today what turn of chance led someone to select the doorsteps of the home of that wealthy Back Bay bachelor as those on which to leave a six months' old, blue-eyed, golden-haired boy.

The youngster, clad in white, is at the Chardon street home, wailing with full lung power. Meanwhile, the police of Station 16 are investigating.

The boy's removal from the Frothingham home at No. 140 Beacon street was brought about by patrolmen from Station 16. Some one telephoned the police there was a baby on the doorstep. The poice could find no clew to the child's identity and turned their charge over to the matron at the city home.

In a few moments, after getting outside the contents of a well-filled, warm bottle, the boy was in "the land o' dreams." But he wailed some more when he awoke.

PRAISES BOSTON COMMERCE BOARD

The Boston Chamber of Commerce today received a telegram from Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, saying that during the past year the Boston Chamber has been a "tower of strength" to the national chamber. The telegram will be read tonight at the Boston Chamber's annual Spring dinner and "gambol" at the Copley-Plaza.

SENATE TO QUERY BUSINESS MEN

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Senate Finance Committee today decided to appoint a sub-committee to formulate questions to be submitted to the business interests of the country. This is in line with a suggestion made by Senator La Follette. Senators Simmons, Stone and Williams will serve on this committee.

URGES $250,000 FOR THE PANAMA FAIR

An important hearing will be held tomorrow forenoon at the State House before the Ways and Means Committee on the question of appropriating $250,000 for the Massachusetts State exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915. Of this amount only $50,000 would come out of this year's tax levy.

MAY EXTEND GYPSY MOTH QUARANTINE

WASHINGTON, May 20.—An extension of the New England quarantine against the gypsy and brown tail moth is being considered by Secretary of Agriculture Houston. A public hearing for all persons interested in an extension of the quarantine lines will be held by the secretary on June 12.

SENTENCE ANHUT FRIDAY.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Sentencing of John N. Anhut, the lawyer convicted of offering a bribe in connection with a plot to free Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan Asylum, was deferred today until Friday.

CALL STATE HEALTH BOARD "FOSSILIZED"

Charges that the Massachusetts State Board of Health is "fossilized, fuddy-duddy, inefficient, incompetent and irresponsible" and in "sad need" of a thorough reorganization were made today before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives at a hearing on the bill to reorganize the board. The bill is the one which is backed by the AMERICAN and its pure food expert, Harry P. Cassidy.

Among the speakers favoring the bill were a delegation of prominent Lynn citizens, including former Representative John H. Coggswell, Michael P. Ward, former chairman of the Lynn Health Board, and Dr. J. William Voos, a former medical inspector of the State Board, and Attorney Junius T. Auerbach.

Dr. Voos declared the State Board is incompetent to handle the bulk of the public health problems in Massachusetts. He said the board consisted mainly of Assistant Secretary William P. Hanson. Dr. Voos said Dr. Hansosn is "to all intents and purposes the board."

Dr. Voos declared:

"The work of the secretary, Dr. Mark W. Richardson, is impeded by his examinations, made on the State's time, for the Equitable Life Insurance Company at $5 each. They have left everything to Dr. Hanson, who has created a reputation as conducting the most insolent office in the State House."

THREE INJURED IN STAGING COLLAPSE

WORCESTER, May 20.—Three men were seriously injured when a staging on a new building at the corner of Endicott and Vernon streets gave away, the men falling two stories onto a pile of bricks. Robert Libshitz, aged twenty-four, the contractor; Michael Miliet, twenty-two, and George Brodlusky, aged twenty-five, who were injured, were taken to the hospital.

FATHER OF AUTHOR WHITE DIES IN FIRE

MONTEREY, May 20.—Matthew White of New York, a retired malt manufacturer and father of Matthew White, Jr., the writer, lost his life in a fire that destroyed the Summer home of the family here early today.

STOCKHOLDERS TO INVESTIGATE THE NEW HAVEN

As the result of the decline in the price of New Haven stock and of the various investigations of the company and its acts, a committee of stockholders has been appointed to investigate the situation. The committee consists of George [illegible] L. Meyer, chairman; Charles F. Adams 2d, Philip Dexter, Wilmot R. Evans, president of Boston Five Cents Savings Bank; James L. Richards, president of Massachusetts Gas Companies; Charles A. Stone of Stone & Webster, and Eugene V. R. Thayer, president of Merchants National Bank. Richard Olney and Bradley W. Palmer will act as counsel.

F. K. Cummings, Box 362, Boston, is secretary; C. E. Backus, care Old Colony Trust Company, assistant secretary. The committee says:

In our opinion it is time that an investigation concerning the future policy of company should be made on behalf of the stockholders and that proper steps should be taken to care for the various interests affected. The public, the employes and the stockholders are all equally concerned in the future policy of the company. We have been led to believe that investigation and subsequent action by a committee composed of those who have had no hand in any of the policies of the company, and who may therefore be unbiased, would be useful.

FATHER WHO BEAT SON FINED $25

[illegible] Shuman of No. 69 Harvard street, Everett, was found guilty in Malden court today of assaulting his thirteen-year-old son Jubilo. Judge Bruce fined him $25. When the boy played truant from school his father beat him unconscious. He had to spend two days in the Whidden Hospital.

GIBSON, 'DESERTED BY COUNSEL,' IN COURT FOR TRIAL

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 20.—Declaring that he had been deserted by his counsel, Burton W. Gibson, the lawyer accused of drowning Rosa Menschik Szabo in Greenwood Lake, last July, in order to secure her estate, was arraigned for his second trial today before Justice Tompkins.

"I am without funds and my lawyer has not communicated with me," Gibson informed the court.

The case was then delayed until Robert Elder, Gibson's lawyer, could be communicated with in Brooklyn by telephone. Another homicide case was in progress at the time, but according to the rules of the court, Gibson had to put in an appearance. His case follows the one on trial.

MEET TO AID HOME RULE TOMORROW

Representative men from all sections of New England are expected tomorrow at the conference to be held at the American House in the interests of the cause of home rule for Ireland. The conference will be opened at 11 o'clock and will be addressed by the national officers of the United Irish League of America. Michael J. Jordan of the Suffolk County bar will preside.

AUTOISTS PAY $70 FINES IN COURT AT CAMBRIDGE

Fines totalling $70 were paid by autoists in Cambridge Court today. James Sinclair of Medford, for refusing to stop when ordered to, was fined $25. He was found not guilty of recklessly operating his machine. Theodore Chadwick of Thayer Hall, a Harvard student, was fined $20 for operating his machine without a license. George P. Lewis of Lexington was fined $10 for exceeding the speed limit on a motorcycle in the Mystic Valley Parkway. Arthur H. McKay of Winchester was fined $15 for speeding with his auto on the Mystic Valley Parkway.

CHARLES V. DASEY, EX-CONSUL, DEAD

Charles V. Dasey, for many years the Netherlands Consul in Boston, died at his home in the Neponset district of Dorchester early today after an extended illness. Mr. Dasey was for years one of the leading steamship passenger agents in Boston, with offices in the Board of Trade building. Several months ago he resigned his consulship in favor of his son, Charles V. Dasey, Jr., owing to ill-health.

No Corsets Can Be Fitted During This Sale

Filene's

Size Range Will Be Complete When the Sale Starts

Did You Ever Hear of Such Prices for CORSETS of Standard Make and Correct Style? Sale Is for Tomorrow and Thursday

This Week's MID-WEEK Sale will be as different as can be from the ordinary Corset Sale. We have worked for weeks with all the force of our Corset organization to make possible this presentation at very much below their regular staple prices, of 1600 Corsets that we can recommend.

Two lots are well-known corsets, the sale of which we control in Boston. In this sale they will be $3.75 instead of $7.50.

Another is a model made for us and not sold elsewhere to our knowledge. Our salespeople say they could not "keep house" without "The Grace." $2 and $2.50 grades in this sale at $1.

The other two lots are the well-known Bon Ton and P. N. corsets, both standard makes. Their regular prices are solidly established. The sale prices are very much less.

Third Floor

$7.50 Corsets $3.75 $7.50 Corsets $3.75

$5 Corsets $2.50 $3.50 Corsets $2

$7.50 La Walohn Corsets $3.75

A brand controlled exclusively in Boston by Filene's. Boned with walohn, which is practically unbreakable. Two models, in two different brocades, for regular and full figures. For full figures they are cut with medium height bust and long, soft skirt; daintily trimmed with pretty laces and flat satin ribbon bows; substantial webbing supporters. For regular figures, a model with the very low bust and long, lightly-boned skirt; elastic webbing inserts in front, to give a close, modish line; silk hose supporters.

$5 Bon Ton Corsets $2.50

A well-known model of firm light coutil, for full and regular figures; substantially boned. The bones are floss-finished and reinforced. Medium bust with long skirt. Three pair of heavy webbing hose supporters. Satin finish top, lace trimmed.

$3.50 P. N. Corsets $2

A perfect model for the average figure. A substantially boned, well-made corset of fine mercerized batiste with three pair of heavy webbing supporters. Medium low bust with long hip. Dainty trimming.

FILENE FITTING METHODS

No corsets will be fitted during the three days of this sale. However, each corset will be properly laced and detailed instructions for adjustment are given. Appointments for fittings may be made for a later date. Our improved and thoroughly scientific fitting methods give a grace and comfort not possible in the corset carelessly selected or fitted.

$1 $2 and $2.50 "The Grace" Corsets $1

A Filene exclusive brand. A flexibly boned corset of mercerized batiste and coutil (material used in corsets selling at $3 and higher), in a suitable weight for Summer wear, cut with moderately low bust and with a long, soft skirt and webbing hose supporters. New, clean merchandise, thoroughly desirable in every way.

FILENE EXCLUSIVE CORSETS

Certain models made to our own designs, according to expert ideas of right corseting.

THE SYLPHETTE—A Paris-made corset designed for American figures.

THE GRACE—With front or back lacing.

THE IRIS—Which may be laundered.

THE VINETTE—Unusual French models, boned throughout with whalebone.

THE FILETTE—A French corset along medium lines.

LIVELY FARCE PRESENTED AT THE TREMONT

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

French farce that keeps within the bounds of decency after its translation and adoption is frequently flat, but there was no trouble of that kind with "The Gentleman from No. 19" at the Tremont last evening. For a few moments after the rise of the curtain it looked as if the play was drifting into fields where our upright censor would have to take a hand in the proceedings, but the trend was deceiving and nothing particularly shocking came to light. That is, if your views are broad and liberal.

To have kept "The Gentleman from No. 19" reasonably proper and still preserve the natural comedy of its emphatically Frenchy situations was an achievement worth mentioning. The play was a literal riot of fun—rich in dialogue and generously ample in ludicrous situations. There was novelty to the idea and the development of the story, while rather noisy in action, was adroitly handled. In farce you are expected to take a good deal for granted, and such was the case last evening.

Plenty of Laughs.

But you did laugh—and laugh. There was no chance to resist the comedy.

As in most things he does in his profession, Walter Jones kept the good cheer moving forward all the time. He was almost too funny to believe, but he convinced you with stirring evidence in the shape of a splendidly effective performance. Mr. Jones was sincerely funny in every movement. That he should play the role of a man especially sensitive to hypnotic influence and should lose his self-control at the sight of any glistening object, might not have been so amusing if the actor had not been at his best. At any rate, you could feel the complications approaching when you learned that the shining door knob of Amelie's bedroom had turned Chaumet from the path of duty to a tour of inspection within the lady's room. Of course, she was in bed.

Mr. Jones' acting of Chaumet was not only reasonable, but intelligent. He displayed a knowledge of farcical values that kept the performance on an even keel.

Proves Diverting.

There was an artistic quality to "The Gentleman from No. 19" that could not have been attained by less skilful playing. The farce was agreeable in many ways, but its success as an entertainment was clinched by the good acting bestowed upon it. In this respect it had the advantage of such players as Henry Bergman, Nannette Comstock and Richie Ling. There was not a weak spot in the line.

If your sense of humor is in good working order "The Gentleman from No. 19" will prove diverting. It goes straight to your funny bone.

JULIA MARLOWE turning first spadeful of earth on site of new Wilbur Theatre on Tremont street. Beside her is Mayor Fitzgerald, from whom she received the spade.

Managers Like Act.

At the close of its Boston engagement at B. F. Keith's Theatre, "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" will go to Philadelphia, where it will remain for the rest of the Summer. Last week managers from all over the country came to see it at Keith's and were so impressed with it that it has been booked for the next two years.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

New vaudeville and motion pictures were presented at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. Amateurs are announced for Thursday.

Scenic Temple.

The change of program at the Scenic Temple yesterday brought new vaudeville numbers and a long list of attractive picture subjects.

CRAIG PLAYERS SCORE HIT IN 'WALLINGFORD'

John Craig's players at the Castle Square Theatre gave an enjoyable performance of George M. Cohan's dramatization of George Randolph Chester's story, "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," last evening. Mr. Craig was not in the cast. He sat in a box and appeared to enjoy the performance as much as did the audience.

William P. Carleton has the big part this week as Wallingford, ably aided and abetted by Donald Meek as Blackie Daw. Miss Mary Keener is a winsome Fannie Jasper, and Miss Florence Shirley shares honors with her as Dorothy Welles, her chum. Robert Capron, as Clint Harkins, and Miss Laurett Browne as Bessie Meers, the head waitress, furnish delightful comedy.

In character parts, Hubert Pierce, as the Pinkerton man, and Carney Christie, as the head clerk of the Palace Hotel, shared the applause with them. Frederick Ormonde was Andrew Dempsey, the landlord of the Palace Hotel. The characters and plot are now an old story, but last night they assumed a new interest.

Alfred Lunt, Harvey Clark, Al Roberts and Miss Mabel Colcord are old favorites with the Castle Square Theatre goers who are in the cast.

St. James Theatre.

"The Girls from the Follies," a tabloid musical comedy, headed the new bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday. New motion pictures were also exhibited.

Waldron's Casino.

"The Columbia Burlesquers," presenting "The Love Race," began a week of funmaking at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was a spirited show.

Norumbega Park.

Norumbega Park opened for the season Sunday and was visited by thousands of pleasure seekers. The grounds are in splendid condition and many new features have been added. The vaudeville program in the open air theatre had its first performances yesterday. The bill was enjoyed by large audiences.

Next Week's Bills.

"The Fires of Fate" will be John Craig's offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

Ringling Brothers' Circus will arrive next Monday and stay for one week.

TOOTS PAKA IN HAWAIIAN FETE KEITH FEATURE

The festive "Hula-Hula" dance, the native Hawaiian dance of celebration, is the feature of this week's bill at Keith's, with Toots Paka, accompanied by her native singers and instrumentalists, as the exponent of its weird rhythm.

The act is easily one of the most novel of recent Keith importations, and at its first performance proved that it will be popular in Boston, by the genuine applause with which it was received.

The dancer appears suddenly and to the accompaniment of a weird native song of considerable melody and two native instruments, begins the "Hula-Hula." The dance consists chiefly of a series of rhythmical gestures, which gradually blend into a swaying movement in which the singer joins. Slowly the dancers work toward the wings and suddenly glide out of sight.

"Neptune's Garden of Living Statues" entered into its third successful week. The Spanish mimes, Carlo Casetta and Lillian Lestora, in their new and fantastic "La Danse Dementia" were enthusiastically received, as was Clara Sexton as the Spirit of Amphitrite.

The Kinetophone, the talking moving pictures, Thomas A. Edison's latest invention, presented a sketch called "Educated," and for the second number introduced "The Olio, Edison Minstrels, Part 2."

Gaiety Theatre.

Motion pictures are now installed in the Gaiety Theatre, and those exhibited yesterday were not only new to Boston, but were splendid subjects as well. "The Gunmen of New York," in three reels, was a thriller of the most pronounced type and revealed incidents that expose the terrible conditions that exist in the underworld of that city. Another film that proved popular—and instuctive, too—was one that showed the trapping of wild animals. To go into the jungle and capture wild animals in front of a motion picture machine is an achievement of considerable consequence, and these films are sure to grow in popularity.

Globe Theatre.

The Excelsior trio of singing comedians made a good impression at the Globe Theatre yesterday. The act was fast and snappy. Another smart feature was supplied by the Emily sisters, aerialists. The motion picture program was made up of new subjects, and was headed by the Pathe Weekly.

Howard Athenaeum.

Pat White and his "Trolley Trippers" contributed the entertainment at the Old Howard yesterday. Several vaudeville features were included in the bill.

HARVARD NIGHT AT POPS TONIGHT

Harvard night at the Pops this evening will mean a most entertaining special evening. The Harvard Glee Club will be present to sing in the intermissions. Selections from the 1913 Hasty Pudding and Pi Eta plays will be heard, also new pieces by Perley, Spellman and Castillo. The program is as follows:

March, "Up the Street" .... R. G. Morse

National Theatre.

The new vaudeville and picture program at the National Theatre yesterday contained many subjects that had never before been seen in Boston.

ATTRACTIONS THAT REMAIN IN BOSTON

Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe again presented "Romeo and Juliet" at the Shubert last evening. Their new play for the week will be "Macbeth," which will be given on Thursday.

"Louisiana Lou" entered upon its second week at the Majestic Theatre last evening. The rollicking nature of the piece is drawing large crowds.

"Sweethearts" continues at the Colonial Theatre. Christie MacDonald is adding to her already expansive popularity with this new Victor Herbert operetta.

"The Old Homestead" began a new week at the Boston last evening. It is a play that sweetens with age.

"The Blindness of Virtue" continues at the Park. The English company presenting this play has made a good impression on playgoers.

The Rainey African hunt pictures are drawing interested audiences to Tremont Temple. These pictures are worth seeing at any time.

Orpheum Theatre.

The new bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday was headed by Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher, who presented a lively comedy sketch called "The Half Way House." There were other vaudeville features and new motion pictures.

You Can Make Pure Lager BEER

In Your Own Home—with Johann Hofmeister Genuine Lager Beer Extract

You can now brew your own beer—best you ever tasted—easily, cheaply, right in your own home. With Johann Hofmeister Beer Extract anyone can make the same high quality lager beer that has been made in Germany for ages—in the same honest, old-fashioned way. Beer that's so tasty, wholesome, satisfying, every member of the family will surely be delighted with it. Better beer than you can buy in saloons or in bottles anywhere. And it will cost less than 3 cents a quart—a little over a half cent a glass!

Real Malt and Hop Beer at 11 Cents a Gallon. Remember, it's not near-beer—not imitation beer—but real German style lager beer, made of select Barley Malt and the best Hops. Beer of fine, natural color—topped with a rich, creamy foam. Beer with snap and sparkle—clear and pure as can be—with life and health in every drop. And the taste—oh, delicious!

Johann Hofmeister Lager Beer Extract is guaranteed under the U. S. Food and Drugs Act, Serial No. 30,317. No license needed anywhere to make your own beer with this pure extract. Get a can of it today, follow the simple instructions—then you'll know why brewery beer can never be sold where this beer has been introduced.

50c can makes 3 gallons of beer.
75c can makes 7 gallons of beer.

Sold by all Druggists, or sent direct, prepaid, upon receipt of price (either size), by Johann Hofmeister, 106 Hofmeister Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

PROVIDENCE FRIEDMANN HOUSE OPEN

PROVIDENCE, May 20.—The first "Friedmann Institute" in New England was opened today in a twenty-five room house, at No. 1 Reservoir avenue, in the Elmwood section. A lease of the house has been taken for five years.

The work of treating patients will be under the direction of Dr. W. D. Dwinell, who has been acting as assistant to Dr. Frederick Friedmann.

Second treatments are to be given at the new "Friedmann Institute" to patients treated by Dr. Friedmann when he visited Providence recently. New patients will also be received.

One day a week is to be set aside as "Charity Day," when patients unable to pay for treatments will be received.

The "Institute" is incorporated for $150,000. The incorporators are Charles H. Dwinell, Jr., brother of Dr. Dwinell; Michael G. H. Corrigan, a druggist, and Lewis V. Arnold of Newport, brother of Doris G. Arnold, who was Dr. Friedmann's counsel.

Brings Beauty to Young and Old

(Medical News)

The universal objection to face powder is solved by the use of a fine lotion easily made at home by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax (which costs little at any drug store) in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water) with 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine added. This wonderful beautifier is very beneficial to the skin, because it prevents chapping, removes that shiny, oily, sallow look and adds beauty to any complexion. It does not show or rub off like powder, but, when on, seems part of the skin, and gives a wholesome, charming tone.

Keep the scalp clean and beautiful hair will be the result. Shampoo with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water and dandruff, dust and excess oil disappear immediately and the hair will be ever so lustrous, fluffy and healthy and the head will feel good. Canthrox acts as a natural tonic to the scalp and prevents falling hair and scalp-irritation. It is easy to use, costs little and can be obtained at any druggist's.—Advertisement.

CASSIDY SHOWS HOW BAY STATE'S PURE FOOD LAWS NEED CODIFYING

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The AMERICAN today is going right after the nub of the trouble in the campaign for pure food legislation at the hearing in the State House to provide for a codification of the health laws of the Commonwealth.

Time was when Massachusetts led the country in passing progressive food legislation. But that was thirty years ago. While other great Commonwealths like Pennsylvania and municipalities as Atlantic City have within a few days passed drastic food laws, the old Bay State has been a sluggard.

When I started this campaign for the AMERICAN to protect the public health there were those who said we couldn't get any laws passed to amount to anything.

Today, after but four months of an educational campaign, there are five pure food laws on the statute books.

We need more of them and we are going to get them. A bill is before Governor Foss for his signature today to make dishonest dealers sell fit food and drink by striking out the word "knowingly" from the law as it now stands.

The Governor said yesterday he had heard of no opposition to the bill. He said he thought he would sign it. He has a great opportunity by doing so to serve the people by protecting their health.

The health laws of Massachusetts need codification. My bill, which will be given a hearing by the Ways and Means Committee today in room 147 is known as House Bill No. 1168.

Provisions of Bill.

It provides: "That two members of the Senate, to be appointed by the president of the Senate, and three members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, shall be a commission to investigate the advisability of changes and additions to the laws of the Commonwealth in relation to the manufacture, sale or use of food products, and to consider whether it is in the interest of the public to provide for additions to the said laws, for repeal of any of them, and for a codification of all laws in relation to the subject. THE COMMITTEE HEREBY ESTABLISHED SHALL HAVE POWER TO ADMINISTER OATHS, TO REQUIRE THE ATTENDANCE AND TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES AND THE PRODUCTION OF BOOKS AND DOCUMENTS.

The committee is to sit during the Summer and report to the next General Court not later than January 5, 1914.

Praise for Health Committee.

Attorney Junius T. Auerbach, who has appeared in behalf of my bill supported by the AMERICAN, gives great credit to the Public Health Committee of the present Legislature for the good work it has done for pure food legislation.

But no committee loaded down with the work this committee had before it could find the time to go into health laws intelligently and with sufficient thoroughness. Mr. Auerbach, in his fight for cold storage legislation backed by the AMERICAN, met the opposition of the stanpatters who argued the committee did not have time to attend to all pure food legislation properly.

The appointment of this committee will answer all arguments that a committee like that on Public Health has not time for during the legislative session. It's a big question and it needs plenty of time for solution.

NOISE? THAT'S HARVARD 1913 ON ITS PICNIC

What each Harvard senior took to the class picnic:

One pair of broad striped bathing trunks.
One cap marked "1913."
One bright tin cup.

Harvard invaded Boston today, when five carloads of Seniors trolleyed down Summer street and along Atlantic avenue to the wharf, where they took the steamer Griswold and went down to Peddock's Island for the annual Senior picnic.

At the island, each man garbed himself in a pair of striped bathing trunks and a white skull cap, lettered "1913." Each man, also, wore at his belt a bright new tin cup.

There was a dinner on the island. There were "stunts," including a contest—nature undisclosed—between the Class Poet and the Class Odist, including also pranks by an amateur sea serpent, including also some practical jokes on sea kegs of beer—vide the tin cups.

They left Harvard at 8:30, after parading about the yard behind a band. Two small boys carried a glaring crimson class banner. Percy Wendell, first marshall, led cheering in front of each dorm for each class, and for the "office" that had given them the day off.

Tonight, they go to Harvard night at the "Pops."

HARVARD CATHOLIC CLUB BIG HIT IN "THE COMMUTERS"

The success of "The Commuters," presented at the Plymouth Theatre by the members of the Cecilian Guild and the St. Paul's Catholic Club of Harvard won much praise for those organizations today.

It was their initial attempt in the amateur dramatic field, and the admirable manner in which every person in the cast handled his part was enthusiastically received. The brilliant assemblage included many prominent men and women.

Nature's Own Wrapper Keeps Tobacco Best

The Natural Leaf Wrapper is valued highly because it enables the manufacturer to give you the freshest—sweetest—coolest tobacco for your pipe.

In Master Workman Tobacco all the natural moisture, on which the natural flavor of the leaf depends, is retained, because all the moisture and sweetness of the leaf is pressed into the plug and kept there by Nature's own package—the natural leaf wrapper.

Sliced or granulated tobacco must be inferior to Master Workman Plug, because any chopped-up tobacco must lose its moisture and flavor—become dry—burn fast and smoke hot. That's why all such chopped up tobaccos bite your tongue.

If you want a slow-burning—cool—sweet smoke, get a plug of Master Workman today and whittle off a fresh pipeful. That first smoke will show you.

PART I

"I KNOW they are." The Inspector's harsh voice brought out the words boastfully. "I fixed it."

"You did!" There was wonder in the magnate's exclamation.

"Sure," Burke declared complacently, "did it through a stool-pigeon."

"Oh, an informer," Gilder interrupted, a little doubtfully.

"Yes," Burke agreed. "Stool-pigeon is the police name for him. Really, he's the vilest thing that crawls."

"But if you think that," Gilder expostulated, "why do you have anything to do with that sort of person?"

"Because it's good business," the Inspector replied. "We know he's a spy and a traitor, and that every time he comes near us we ought to use a disinfectant. But we deal with him just the same—because we have to. Now, the stool-pigeon in this trick is a swell English crook. He went to Garson yesterday with a scheme to rob your house. He tried out Mary Turner, too, but she wouldn't stand for it—said it would break the law, which is contrary to her principles. She told Garson to leave it alone. But he met Griggs afterward without her knowing anything about it, and then he agreed to pull it off. Griggs got word to me that it's coming off to-night. And so, you see, Mr. Gilder, that's how I know. Do you get me?"

"I see," Gilder admitted without any enthusiasm. As a matter of fact, he felt somewhat offended that his house should be thus summarily seized as a trap for criminals.

"But why do you have your men come down over the roof?" he inquired curiously.

"It wasn't safe to bring them in the front way," was the inspector's prompt reply. "It's a cinch the house is being watched. I wish you would let me have your latch-key. I want to come back, and make this collar myself."

The owner of the house obediently took the desired key from his ring and gave it to the inspector with a shrug of resignation.

"But, why not stay, now that you are here?" he asked.

"Huh!" Burke retorted. "Suppose some of them saw me come in? There wouldn't be anything doing until after they see me go out again."

The hall door opened and the butler re-entered the room. Behind him came Cassidy and two other detectives in plain clothes. At a word from his master, the disturbed Thomas withdrew with the intention of obeying the Inspector's directions that he should retire to bed and stay there, carefully avoiding whatever possibilities of peril there might be in the situation so foreign to his ideals of propriety.

"Now," Burke went on briskly, as the door closed behind the servant, "where could these men stay out of sight until they're needed?"

There followed a little discussion which ended in the selection of a storeroom at the end of the passage on the ground floor, on which one of the library doors opened.

"You see," Burke explained to Gilder, when this matter had been settled to his satisfaction, and while Cassidy and the other detectives were out of the library on a tour of inspection, "you must have things right, when it comes to catching crooks on a frame-up like this. I had these men come to Number Twenty-six on the other street, then round the block on the roofs."

Gilder nodded appreciation which was not actually sincere. It seemed to him that such elaborate manoeuvering was, in truth, rather absurd.

"And now, Mr. Gilder," the Inspector said energetically, " going to give you the same tip I g your man. Go to bed, and stay there."

"But the boy," ilder protested. "What about him? the one thing of importance to me."

"If he says anythin ore about going Chicago—just let go, that's all! It's the best place fo n for the next few days. I'll get ouch with you in the morning and you know then how things are coming."

Gilder sighed resig y. His heavy face was lined with x. There was a hesitation in his ma of speech that was wholly unlike it ual quick decisiveness.

"I don't like this of thing," he said doubtfully. "I le go ahead because I can't suggest alternative, but I don't like it, not at a It seems to me that other methods m be employed with excellent results hout the element of treachery wh seems to involve me as well as in our efforts to overcome this woman."

Burke Has No Qu s

Burke, however, had qualms as to such plotting.

"You must have croo ways to catch crooks, believe me," h d cheerfully. "It's the easiest and quickest way out of the trouble for us, and the easiest and quickest way into trouble for them."

The return of the detectives caused him to break off, and he gave his attention to the final arrangements of his men.

"You're in charge here," he said to Cassidy, "and I hold you responsible. Now listen to this, and get it." His coarse voice came with a grating note of command. "I'm coming back to get this bunch myself, and I'll call you when you're wanted. You'll wait in the storeroom out there and don't make a move until you hear from me, unless by any chance things go wrong and you get a call from Griggs. You know who he is. He's got a whistle, and he'll use it if necessary. . . . Got that straight?" And, when Cassidy had declared an entire understanding of the directions given, he concluded concisely. "On your way, then!"

As the men left the room, he turned again to Gilder.

"Just one thing more," he said. "I'll have to have your help a little longer. After I've gone, I want you to stay up for a half-hour anyhow, with the lights burning. Do you see? I want to be sure to give the Turner woman time to get here while that gang is at work. Your keeping on the lights will hold them back, for they won't come in till the house is dark, so in half an hour you can get off the job, switch off the lights and go to bed and stay there—just as I told you before." Then Inspector Burke, having in mind the great distress of the man over the unfortunate entanglement of his son, was at pains to offer a reassuring word.

"Don't worry about the boy," he said, with grave kindliness. "We'll get him out of this scrape all right." And with the assertion he bustled out, leaving the unhappy father to miserable forebodings.

GILDER scrupulously followed the directions of the Police Inspector. Uneasily, he had remained in the library until the allotted time was elapsed. He fidgeted from place to place, his mind heavy with distress under the shadow that threatened to blight the life of his cherished son. Finally, with a sense of relief he put out the lights and went to his chamber. But he did not follow the further directions given him, for he was not minded to go to bed. Instead, he drew the curtains closely to make sure that no gleam of light could pass them, and then sat with a cigar between his lips, which he did not smoke, though from time to time he was at pains to light it. His thoughts were most with his son, and ever as he thought of Dick, his fury waxed against the woman who had enmeshed the boy in her plotting for vengeance on himself. And into his thoughts now crept a doubt, one that alarmed his sense of justice. It occurred to him that this woman could not have thus nourished a plan for retribution through the years unless, indeed, she had been insane, even as he had claimed—or innocent! The idea was appalling. He could not bear to admit the possibility of having been the involuntary inflicter of such wrong as to send the girl to prison for an offence she had not committed. He rejected the suggestion, but it persisted. He knew the clean, wholesome nature of his son. It seemed to him incredible that the boy could have thus given his heart to one altogether undeserving. A horrible suspicion that he had misjudged Mary Turner crept into his brain, and would not out. He fought it with all the strength of him, and that was much, but ever it abode there. He turned for comfort to the things Burke had said. The woman was a crook, and there was an end of it. Her ruse of spoliation within the law was evidence of her shrewdness, nothing more.

Tuxedo is the original granulated Burley Tobacco, and has been more widely imitated than any other high-grade tobacco in the world. Thousands of America's most famous men have found that smoking Tuxedo affords them complete relaxation, soothing comfort, and healthful enjoyment. And every man who tries Tuxedo will find the same desirable qualities in this pure, mild, delightful tobacco.

"PAT" McDONALD

"Pat" McDonald, the big New York Policeman who won the 16-lb. shot put, "best hand," at the Olympic Games last summer, says:

"A pipeful of Tuxedo for mine. It's the best tobacco ever. I actually feel stronger after a smoke session with Tuxedo."

Patrick McDonald

You can smoke Tuxedo, no matter how many other pipe-tobaccos you have tried and had to give up—for Tuxedo does not irritate the most sensitive mouth, throat or nose—in fact, many public speakers and singers find that smoking Tuxedo has a soothing, helpful influence on their throats.

Tuxedo is made from the very best, selected Burley tobacco grown in Kentucky—carefully ripened, cured and aged until it is perfectly mild and mellow. Then treated by the famous "Tuxedo Process" that removes the last trace of "bite" and bitterness, and develops the wonderful fragrance and flavor of the Burley leaf. Tuxedo has many imitators in the tin—but as long as the secrets of the "Tuxedo Process" remain undiscovered, it will have no equal in the pipe or cigarette.

JOEL HILLMAN

Joel Hillman, proprietor of the famous "Harvey's" restaurant at Washington, says:

"Tuxedo is a good, wholesome tobacco, with a mildness and fragrance all its own. It adds many degrees to my pipe pleasure."

Joel Hillman

GEO. CURRY

Geo. Curry, ex-Governor, and ex-Congressman from New Mexico, says:

"Tuxedo appeals to me strongly on account of its cool, mild, pleasant flavor. Therein lies its superiority to all other tobaccos."

Geo Curry

HENRY STUCKART

Henry Stuckart, City Treasurer of Chicago, says:

"I regard Tuxedo as not only absolutely harmless, but genuinely beneficial. Tuxedo goes in my pipe always."

Henry Stuckart

WALTER WELLMAN

Walter Wellman, famous journalist, explorer and aeronaut, says:

"In the Arctic regions, through wear days in camp at Spitzbergen, or sailin 1,000 miles over the Atlantic in th airship America, my favorite tobacco ha always been Tuxedo."

Walter Wellman

GARRETT P. SERVISS

Garrett P. Serviss, prominent scientist and writer, author of "The Second Deluge," etc., says:

"I have tried many brands of tobacco, good, bad and indifferent, before alighting upon Tuxedo, the ideal smoke."

Garrett P. Serviss

JOHN J. McGRAW

John J. McGraw, famous manager of the New York Giants, champions of the National League, says:

"Tuxedo gives to my pipe smoking a keen enjoyment that I have experienced with no other tobacco. Supreme in mildness and fragrance is Tuxedo."

John J. McGraw

HENRY REUTERDAHL

Henry Reuterdahl, famous naval artist, and expert on naval construction, says:

"You've got to smoke while painting out of doors in winter—it helps you to keep warm. And a pipeful of pure, mild Tuxedo tobacco makes one forget the cold, and the paint flows more freely."

H Reuterdahl

CHAMPION SOX OUT TO DEFEAT CHICAGO AGAIN

CHICAGO, Ill., May 20.—Ray Collins, the southpaw, was picked to go against the White Sox this afternoon in an effort to make it two straight wins for the Boston lads.

Collins has been going well in his last times out and Wagner has an idea that he can repeat. The Boston lads certainly were cheered up today. They beat the White Sox 10 to 1 in the opener, but it was not that so much as it was the fact that they hit timely and that Joe Wood pitched a corking game. The Red Sox played just the kind of ball that wins all the time. They waited until they got men on the bases and then cracked it to all corners of the lot with the result that their runs came in bunches.

Joe Benz, a spit ball pitcher, will probably be on the slab for the White Sox and if he is named you can expect a long game. It's like this. Benz has had a fault of working too fast. Any time that he got in the hole he could scarcely wait until the catcher returned the ball so eager was he to shoot it back at the batter.

Third Baseman Gardner today is on his way to Boston. An X-ray examination of his ankle showed that several ligaments were broken and the attending physician said it would be weeks before he could get back into the game. Neither President McAleer nor Acting Manager Wagner could see any reason why he should remain with the team since he could not get in uniform and he was told to go home. When he departed it was on crutches. More than a month will pass before he can get back.

Nunamaker got back into the game yesterday and his absence apparently had little effect upon his batting eye.

HOT LINERS

C. Webb Murphy, disgusted with the weakness of his pitching staff, sent eight scouts to different parts of the country yesterday with orders to gather in some pitchers.

* * *

The wonderful showing made this season by the Phillies has necessitated the building of six additional ticket offices to facilitate the handling the crowds.

* * *

Horace Fogel, who used to own the Phillies, isn't experiencing a seasick feeling when he notes the daily attendance figures at the Phillies is double and treble what it was last year.

* * *

The Dodgers again beat the Cardinals but wailed to move into first place because the Phillies had an easy time defeating the Cubs.

* * *

"Smoky" Joe Woods seems to be back in form again. He held the White Sox to one run yesterday while his own club piled ten in back of him.

* * *

Ty Cobb, three hits out of three times up, were big factors in the defeat of the Athletics by the Tigers.

* * *

Eddie Collins, who is leading the American League batsmen, harvested four hits out of four attempts yesterday.

* * *

Jake Daubert, the Dodgers' first sacker, continues to slug the ball, having made a single and a triple yesterday.

* * *

Falkenberg, the elongated "come-back" twirler of the Naps, added another victory to his string yesterday, making eight in a row.

* * *

With the bases full in the eighth inning, Manager Chance, up for the second time in that inning, batted out of turn, singled and scored the two runs that won the game for the Giants. When the Browns protested the trick, it was too late to be availing.

* * *

"Henie" Zimmerman and Manager Evers of the Cubs had a wordy battle in the field yesterday that may result in Evers suspending the star third sacker, who, it is said, objects to playing under Evers.

* * *

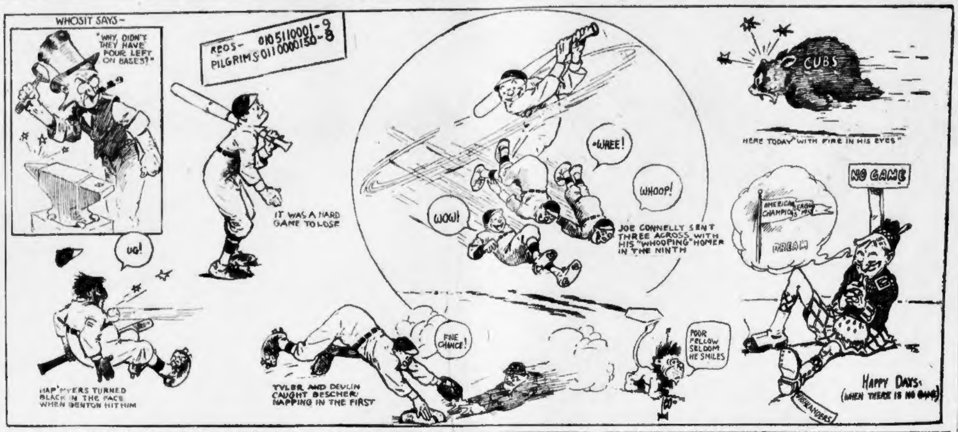

The most thrilling game staged on the Polo Grounds for a long time was that of yesterday, which the Giants won in the fourteenth inning, 3 to 2. Time and again the pitchers for both the Giants and Pirates were in "holes," but wonderful fielding pulled them out. The Pirates used fourteen and the Giants eighteen players.

* * *

Temperamental Tillie Shafer, who quit the team in a huff a few days ago, was back in centre for the Giants yesterday and drew loud cheers when he stepped to the plate.

B. A. A. STARS TO START IN GOTHAM MEET

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

The Boston Athletic Association will open its track season by sending a team to compete in the annual games conducted by the Post Office clerks of New York at Celtic Park next Sunday. All of the athletes who are now training will make the trip. This list includes Powers, Hiney, Hedlund, Marceau and Barwise.

George V. Brown will referee the games. The chief event of interest will be the special half-mile scratch race in which Sheppard, Kiviat and Meredith are entered. It is doubtful, however, whether Sheppard will compete, as he has not run for some time. This will be the first appearance of Kiviat outdoors this year, and his work will be watched with interest, as he intends to go after the one-mile record now held by John Paul Jones, the Cornell distance runner.

Marceau and Powers in 880.

It is probable that Marceau and Powers will start in the half-mile event, while Hedlund will start in the 1,000-yards run, which is a handicap affair.

The next meeting of importance will be the Knights of St. Finbar games, which will be held at Locust Street on May 30. Here all of the B. A. A. track team will run, as will the different athletic stars from many of the schools and colleges. Owing to the big intercollegiate meet coming on the same day, many of the Harvard team will be unable to compete.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles have decided to conduct another field day this year. It will be held at the National League baseball grounds, on Monday, June 9. There will be a 100-yard dash, 440, 880, and one-mile runs, besides the shot-put. It is planned to have the different athletes from the Unicorn Club enter this meet, as well as all of the others that will occur during the coming months.

Plan Championship Games.

The New England championships will probably be held June 21. This will give the New England Association officials a chance to pick a team that will compete in the national championships which will take place in Chicago a few weeks later.

CARDINALS IN LINE TO MEET FAST TEAMS

The Cardinals of Charlestown have just organized for the season and are open to meet all fourteen-fifteen-year-old teams of Greater Boston. A schedule is being arranged and any fast team desiring games should forward their challenges immediately. Joe Ryan has been elected captain and John McGraw, manager. Teams wishing games should write the manager, No. 66 Moulton street, Charlestown.

ART MUSEUM VICTOR.

The Art Museum School defeated Wellesley High by a score of 10 to 8 in a 10-inning game at Wellesley.

THREE BIG BOUTS ON CARD TONIGHT

BALDWIN-GALLANT AT THE ATLAS A. A.

Charlestown Boy Rules Favorite in Lightweight Test.

By JACK CONWAY.

Matty Baldwin rules a favorite in his twelve-round bout with Gilbert Gallant, which takes place at the Atlas A. A. tonight. It is believed that the Charlestown lightweight's great strength and knowledge of ring craft will enable him to vanquish his young and rugged opponent from Chelsea.

But whether Baldwin or Gallant wins, it should be a whirlwind b..t.'e from start to finish. Both men are wi..'ng, aggressive fighters and will probably stand toe to toe and exchange punches.

Gallant is confident that he will be returned the winner. He has been training for the past week like a Trojan at a Chelsea gymnasium and says that if he is vanquished he will not have any excuse to offer.

Joe White of South Boston and "Gunboat" Eldridge will clash in the semifinal bout of ten rounds. This whirl will probably not go the limit, as both men are sweet hitters. The chances are that White will be returned the winner, as he is stronger and in better physical condition than the "Gunboat."

Two six-round preliminaries have been arranged. Tommy McFarland of the South End meets Jerry Lucentte of Spokane, Wash., in the opening contest, while Terry O'Rourke of Lawrence and Eddie Regan of Quincy battle in the other preliminary.

LORD REPORTS TO MANAGER STALLINGS

Briscoe Lord, who was secured by the Pilgrims from the Baltimore Club in exchange for Pitcher McTigue last week, reported to Manager Stallings at practice this morning and will in all probability be soon in action in the game against the Cubs this afternoon.

Lord reported in good condition and may be placed in centre field in place of Mann, who is in a batting slump at present.

"BUCK" CROUSE WINS BOUT BY KNOCKOUT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20.—"Buck" Crouse, Pittsburgh's middleweight boxer, knocked out Blink McCloskey here. McCloskey made a feeble resistance against the local man. Barring a few minutes of the first session when Mac slipped some short arms against Crouse's jaw, the veteran was outclassed. He couldn't stand Crouse's sharp jabs and hard right swings.

SANDY FERGUSON DEFEATS MADDEN

GLOUCESTER, May 20.—Sandy Ferguson won from Jeff Madden of South Boston in a ten-round bout here. Sandy evidently forgot he had a right hand while Madden played for the body whenever they came together, which was so infrequent that the members had time to offer plenty of suggestions.

ENGLISH POLOISTS WIN MATCH, 21-0

NEW YORK, May 20.—The English challengers for the international polo trophy showed their wares for the first time in this country in an eight-period game at the Piping Rock Club. A team of extremely low handicap local players met the Englishmen and was beaten 21 goals to 0.

EASY FOR DORCHESTER.

Dorchester High had no difficulty in taking the measure of Lynn classical at the Dunbar avenue grounds by a score of 12 to 0. Dorchester got thirteen hits off Muller, while Lynn got four hits off Benson.

NEWMARKET RACES.

NEWMARKET, Eng., May 20.—The second spring race meeting opened here today. August Belmont's Tracery won the Burwell plate, value $2,500, Jackdaw ran second and Stedfast third.

ATLAS A. A PROGRAM.

Matty Baldwin vs. Gilbert Gallant, 12 rounds.

Joe White vs. "Gunboat" Eldridge, 10 rounds.

Eddie Regan vs Terry O'Rouke, 6 rounds.

Tommy McFarknd vs. Jerry Lucentte, 6 rounds.

EDDIE MURPHY AND BRITTON MEET TONIGHT

Eddie Murphy of S..th Boston battles Jack Britton of Chic.go tonight at Kenosha, just outside th. Windy City, and a red-hot bout is look. for, the Peninsula boy having lost to .he Morgan wizard in their first appearan.. here.

The Britton-Murphy out is a grudge fight, pure and simple. Murphy is out for revenge on the Chi.go crack. Jack caught Eddie way out o.shape last Winter here, so the Hub bo. says, and dealt him a pretty stiff lacing.or eleven rounds.

Murphy alleges he wa. handicapped by cramps in the stomach .nd a bad right hand. His manager, Mikey McBride, allows he knows this to b. true.

Murphy ever since h. been begging Danny Morgan and Brit.n to give him a return set-to. Morgan .as finally come across and the stage is .et for a stunning battle in the Badge. ring.

McBride sent the Bos.n boy against a welterweight named E.ie Fisher at Springfield, O., for ten r.nds Thursday night and Murf got a draw.with his bigger foe. He claims he was u.der wraps all the way, at that, for fear .f jamming up his hands.

The bout should serve . an excellent conditioner for the Britt. row. Jack himself has not boxed f. a couple of weeks, but has been fighti. so often the past year that he needs bu. little work.

"Britton never had anyth.g on me and I will prove it," said Murp.. in speaking of the bout. "He licked . when I was sick, but a featherweigh. could have whaled me that night. I'll .ow him this time, and I guess if I beat .im I will be in the running for the li.weight title myself."

Mandot Battle to Make or Break Anderson in Ring

LOS ANGELES, Cal., .y 20.—The fight against Joe Mandot .onight will either "make or break" .oung Bud Anderson.

The Medford boy will ei.r leave the ring as one of the best lig.weight cards in the country or an expl.d "comer" with nothing better than .cond-grade dates in store for him.

Anderson and Mandot ar. matched to box twenty rounds before .he Pacific Athletic club at Vernon, to.ght.

The weight is 133 pounds. 6 o'clock. There is no choice in the b.ing, which is at even money.

Just as Joe Rivers began, . unknown, and fought himself into a .llowing of thousands, so Anderson is .uilding for himself, and should he w. decisively over Mandot, a match betw. Bud and the Mexican would necessi.e the enlarging of the arena build.

JOHNNY LORE LOSES BOUT TO SHGRUE

CLEVELAND, May 20.—.ung Shugrue of Jersey City was give. .e decision over Johnny Lore of New Y. in a fast twelve-round bout at Youn..wn. The two lightweights seemed in .ne condition, but Shugrue was a litt..aster and the more skilful dodger, Lore .ng unable to land his harder blows.

SMITH-WILLARD IN COAST BATTLE

Cowboy Picked by the Fans to Riddle or Sink the Battleship.

By 'RINGSIDE.'

Jess Willard gets his big test with Gunboat Smith tonight on the coast. If the lanky Kansan can punch the dangerous sailor into submission in their scheduled twenty rounds fame and fortune will be his.

Of course he will have to be good enough to box McCarty before he can be called champion, but a victory over the Gunboat will mean much in itself.

Willard has the size, the strength, the reach and everything but the punch in his favor in this fight. The Gunboat is the party who packs the wallop. In it lies his sole chance of success.

If Willard can keep away from the Tar's right hand he'll win in a walk. Smith is pretty much of a second-rater except for his wallop.

He'll beat most fellows he can nail with his right, but if they get him missing and can punch some themselves it's easy sailing.

We look for Willard, under the capable handling of Tom Jones to show considerable improvement.

There is quite a contrast between the "white hopes," so far as physique is concerned. The Gunner, while fairly tall, is of lathy build. He gets to resemble Bob Fitzsimmons more and more every day. He hasn't as wide shoulders as Fitzsimmons, but he has fine, muscular arms, and his legs are something sturdier than Fitz's.

It seems to be the feeling here, in fact, that Smith, backed by his wallop, is a better match for Willard than if he weighed evenly with the Kansas Giant and was only an ordinary hitter.

PICK COLLINS AS TOP LINER IN BIKE RACE

Elmer Collins of Lynn, one of the speediest pace followers in the world, is the first of the riders to be engaged to compete in the Memorial Day special at the Revere cycle track.

Lynn is enthusiastic over the selection of Collins for the opening event, which will be for twenty-five miles behind new and improved two-cylinder motor pacing machines. Collins did not show to advantage last year and lost to George Wiley in the race for the American and world's middle distance championships.

For the past week he has been at the Newark Velodrome, gradually working into condition. Collins realises that he will have to have his speed with him, as it is Manager Butler's intention to put him against two of the best pace followers he can find in Newark, the present home of the bike riders.

At the present time there are several foreign pace followers at Newark, and Butler is having them carefully watched to see which of the lot he will select to be the second man in the race with Collins. The third will be an American, possibly Percy Lawrence of San Francisco, who is now displaying great speed behind the engines.

In addition to the three-cornered motor paced race of twenty-five miles, there will be several other events, one of them a special match between two of the best professional sprinters.

Alfred Goulette of Australia will probably be one of the men. He has not been seen in this section for two years and in that time has risen to be one of the leading sprinters of the world.

What do you think we ought to do about it? Put Kid Connolly's picture in the paper because he hit a home run in the ninth inning, with three on bases, thereby giving the Boston Nationals a chance to tie up a game in which they were five runs behind? Or pan him for doing a Snodgrass to Catcher Clarke's fly in the tenth, which opened the door for Cincinnati to win back the tied game?

Probably King Solomon, in his infinite wisdom, would have decided that Boston had no business in the ball game, anyway, in the ninth inning; that Connolly earned his day's pay by giving the "fans" their money's worth of happiness in that ninth session and, since Connolly put the Pilgrims back into the game, it was his privilege to take them out again. So Solomon would rule that Connolly ought to be let off with a simple statement of the facts. Judgment: No cause of action.

It's a good bet that after sending the Cincinnati Reds away with that kind of a 9 to 8 victory, the Bostonians will have the wholesome respect of the Cub pitchers in the series of four games that starts this afternoon between Johnny Evers and George Stallings.

If the Pilgrims play baseball the way Stallings steers them, they have a good chance to slip into fifth place—yes, into the first division. If they should beat the Cubs twice in a row, they would pass them. In the meantime, as St. Louis is playing the Giants there is a good chance that the Pilgrims would pass them, too.

But they can't do it without capable catching. Yesterday's backstopping was the principal cause of Boston's defeat. It has figured more prominently in their lost games this season than any other single weakness in the team, and word has doubtless been passed around the circuit, judging by the way the Reds cut loose yesterday.

Whaling, who is not to blame for the poor catching, was out of the game yesterday. Stallings' men felt his day off in the score card. This and "Lefty" Tyler's lackadaisical mood kept them so far out of the game that when Connolly delivered his clean-up four-bagger in the ninth, it was almost impossible to win.

Still, Connolly's effort was not wasted. It gave the Pilgrims another practical lesson, of which they have had several effective ones this season, that Stallings' dope is correct when he tells them, day after day, that no ball game is over until the last man is out in the last inning.

HOBLITZELL UNABLE TO LEAVE BOSTON

Dick Hoblitzell, the clever first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, is a sufferer from tonsilitis. Therefore, Dick, who is very sick and feeling so miserable that he must stay in bed, did not travel with the rest of the Tinkerites when they pulled up stakes and left for Philadelphia.

ROCKLAND IN FRONT.

To say ... to ... McAleer ... see the Browns out of last place IN ST. LOUIS. But ... took his champions away to Chicago and Frank Chance ... where it flows like water, did the job for him.

Moral: Never do today what you can get somebody else to do tomorrow.

* * *

With a little imagination stimulated by a few consistent, winning games, we might see the Red Sox hovering in or about third place a week hence. By polishing off the White Sox they would be in a position to do just this. For at the end of the series now running McAleer will bring his champions back to New York for four games. While he has the cellar stricken Yanks to feed upon at the Polo Grounds, the White Sox—now in the fourth place—should be meat for the Cleveland Cannibals in a series of five games, and the Senators who are third just above Chicago should be victims of the Athletics in a series of four.

P. S. This "dope" is subject to revision by Ed Walsh and Walter Johnson.

* * *

This rosy picture is painted on the background of a big, fat, juicy 10 to 1 ball game that Joe Wood turned for White Sox out of ... Chicago yesterday. When they plastered up that score at South End park we heard the first rousing Red Sox cheer that was heard ... since last October.

* * *

Jake Stahl will probably sit into the game at New York next week. "Sit into the game" is literal, For Jake can't walk without a cane. He has been out in his machine several afternoons, but yesterday was the first time he tried to walk since the operation on his foot. He saw the ball game at South End park.

* * *

"It's bad news to hear about Larry Gardner's injury," said Jake. "That is apt to hurt us. We miss Gardner when he is out of the game. We have had hard luck with disabled men this Spring. I can't count for the team batting hard one day and having a batting slump the next. I am in hopes of joining the team in New York."

* * *

We sometimes join the rest of the bugs in the pastime of panning the umpire. But did it ever occur to YOU how many chances the umpire takes in an average game and how few "boots"? In yesterday's session at South End park about 120 balls on which there was no action were pitched on each side. That is, none of these balls led to an out or a safe at first. Then there were thirty outs on each side, twenty-one hits, eighteen bases on balls, three men hit by pitched balls, a half dozen or six bases on errors, about twenty "safe" decisions on the bases, to say nothing of the fouls that were not caught or counted as strikes. With about 350 decisions to make in an afternoon, a couple of "boots" would not chisel much of a hole in the batting averages of the umpires. But they look worse than a strike-out with "three on" when they make them, don't they?

* * *

When Connolly slapped a home run into Columbus avenue with three on bases in the ninth inning, putting the beaten Pilgrims up to within one run of tying the game and nobody was out, George Stallings did a lot of thinking.

Sweeney and Titus are his two best batsmen. Of course, he let them come and they got on. While Titus was at bat, he intended to have Seymour bat for Mann, if "Silent John" advanced Sweeney as far as third. But, when Titus walked, he made a quick shift and sent up McDonald to "lay one down." He reserved Seymour for the "punch" to bring home Sweeney. Both men "delivered," just as ordered.

* * *

As usual in a pinch, Stallings got every ounce of baseball out of the material he has in his camp.

* * *

Although Briscoe Lord telegraphed Saturday that he would report yesterday, he failed to show up. Ever since Lord was taken in trade for McTigue, Connolly has been pelting the ball like a wild man and when he eased the ball into the "Avenue" in the ninth inning, nobody cared whether Lord ever came around.

* * *

The Lord deal went through May 14. On that day, Connolly hit twice in five times up; May 15, he hit twice for seven bases and sacrificed once in four times; May 17, he hit twice, sacrificed once and walked once in four times; yesterday, he hit twice for six bases and walked once in five times. In eighteen trips to the plate he hit eight times for seventeen bases, including a double, a triple and two home runs; sacrificed twice and walked twice. His batting average was .571 for the four games.

* * *

If Connolly can play this kind of baseball there is no danger of his losing his job in a hurry, even if it is necessary to keep a man on the bench ready to jump in when he falls down.

MURPHY COMES TO LOOK INTO CUB QUARRELS

Five Hundred Dollars in Prizes for Best Solution of 'The Triple Tie'

Prizes aggregating $500 offered by the Boston AMERICAN for the best solutions of the great serial novel, "The Triple Tie," as Follows:

First prize	$200
Second prize	100
Third prize	50
Fourth prize	25
Fifth prize	15
Sixth prize	10
Twenty other prizes, each	5

"THE TRIPLE TIE" will be run in generous daily instalments till June 2[illegible] when the final chapter will be published. Toward the very close of the story the serial will end abruptly at one of the most dramatic situations ever conceived by a novelist. Readers will then be asked to supply the solution to the several mysteries that are unsolved when the instalments end.

Their Married Life

Helen with Difficulty Selects a New Dress from the Balkan-Hued Spring Silks

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

HELEN'S brown broadcloth suit, in which she had felt so well-groomed all Winter, seemed suddenly shabby and dusty as she came out in the bright Spring sunlight.

Although she had brushed it before starting out, she stooped over now and with her gloved hand shook the front of the skirt, and brushed one of Pussy Purrmew's hairs from her sleeve.

The things that look so well all Winter are apt to look disconcertingly shabby on the first bright Spring day. And Helen felt uncomfortably shabby as she took the car at the corner and sat down in the only vacant seat by a woman in an assertively new light gray suit.

As she took out her carfare, even her brown suede gloves looked conspicuously dark and dusty beside the fresh gray kids that held, with an air of superior daintiness, a gold meshed bag.

The air was quite chilly in spite of the brilliant sunlight, yet the brown suit seemed suddenly much too warm and too heavy. The realization that Spring is far advanced and that she has no Spring clothes is a dismaying one to any woman.

Helen had started out to get the material for an afternoon gown, something in foulard or some soft Summer silk. It would take her two weeks before she could get it made, and she needed it now.

She left the car and hurried in to McCormick's. The store was crowded, and the silk counter the most crowded of all.

There was no chance of being waited on for some time. But Helen was glad of the opportunity to look over the many silks displayed on the counter and draped on skirt forms over the shelves. She had read and seen enough of the new Spring fabrics to know they were gaily colored, but in McCormick's display today the colorings were riotous.

Had Nothing Else

Just why American women should wear barbaric hues because there has been a war in the Balkans was not quite clear to Helen, and she had no intention of making herself conspicuous for any such freakish fashion.

But when the clerk was free to wait on her she found they had almost nothing in quiet colorings and small designs. "Everything's large figured and bordered this season," he informed her.

"Then haven't you something from last season that is more quiet?"

"We never carry anything over," haughtily, with a glance that implied she must be a most peculiar person to want anything from last season.

There was nothing to do but try some other shop, and Helen hurried over to Gordon's. But the crowd around the silk counter here was even greater than at McCormick's and the display of colorings and designs fully as spectacular.

The counters were covered with a confusion of bolts, which the over-rushed salesmen had not had time to put back. As Helen glanced over these she started joyfully. Here at last was just what she wanted—a dull pastel blue foulard with a tiny, indistinct white figure.

The bolt was underneath several others, but on the exposed end was marked the width and price—"42 in. $3.00." It was more than Helen wanted to pay, but all the silks were high this Spring, and she was so relieved to find something quiet amid this glaring effulgence of color that the words "Six yards of this, please," hovered on her lips.

She looked impatiently up and down the counter, but every clerk had a customer with two or three others waiting. Her chances were just as good with the clerk nearest her. A woman who had been waiting for this same clerk now got up from the seat beside Helen with an audible:

Helen quickly took the seat, glancing up at the clerk to remind him she was next. But the customer he was now serving, an excessively stout woman, with huge dangling pearl earrings, was plainly taking her time.

"No, this isn't quite what I wanted," as she held up a fold of green and red flowered foulard. "Haven't you something else in these same shades but not quite so dark?"

"I've showed you everything we have, madam," answered the clerk with an unmistakable not of weariness.

"Well, let me see that piece with the purple figure again. No, that isn' the one I meant," as he drew out a bolt from a dozen or more others he had evidently been showing been showing her. "Didn't you show me something with a purple figure on a red and orange ground? Yes, that's it," throwing an end of the silk over her arm and viewing it complacently.

Helen gasped as she pictured this ponderously fat woman in a dress of that silk.

"I suppose those colors are fast? I expect to wear it at the seashore—you don't think the salt air would fade it?"

The clerk gravely assured her that the colors were fast.

"How wide is this? You said six yards would be enough, didn't you?"

"That's forty-two inches, madam. Six yards is what we usually sell, but perhaps," apologetically, "you might require a trifle more."

"This light is so poor to judge colors by," after another ten minutes' hesitation. "Could you take these to the window?"

The colors were raw and glaring enough to be seen in any light, yet the clerk patiently took the three bolts out in the aisle.

Helen knew now that her chances for being waited on would be better with any other clerk, but she was curious to know just how much more of this clerk's time this woman would have the presumption to take.

"Well, this isn't quite what I want—but I suppose I'll take it," she murmured at length, reluctantly. "You're quite sure you haven't anything you haven't shown me that I might like better?"

"Madam, I've shown you every piece of foulard in stock," helplessly.

"Well, six and a half yards of this, then," in an injured tone that implied she had been hurried to her decision.

Helen gave a quite audible sigh of relief. The clerk measured off the silk and took out his scissors.

"Oh, wait—just a moment! Before you cut it—just let me see this other piece again. I wonder after all if I wouldn't like this better? Yet I don't quite like that striped effect. There was one here very much like this without that—Oh, here it is. Now, if I could see this in the light."

A Terrible Customer

Helen knew that if she had been that clerk she would have screamed. But the clerk, with an imperturbable face, took the bolt to the light, brought it back and gazed expressionless into space, while the woman began again to pull over all the other silks.

"You didn't show me that, did you" pointing to a piece the clerk next to them was showing.

"That's taffeta, madam. You said you wanted only foulard."

"Well, of course, if I can't get what I want in foulard, I may have to take taffeta. Let me see what you have, anyway."

By this time Helen felt that she herself wanted to shriek, yet with a perverse curiosity she was determined to see it through.

With divine patience the clerk now brought out bolt after bolt of taffeta. When he finally said "That is all we have in taffeta, madam," she again went back to the foulards. To have room to show the taffetas he had put some of the foulards away. These he got out once more.

"Well, I really don't think any of those are exactly what I want. But you can give me a sample of this. And yes—I'll take one of this, too. Oh, thank you."

And she walked off serenely.

With the same expressionless face the clerk turned to Helen.

"I'll take six yards of this, please."

The astonishingly brisk curtness of Helen's voice was due both to her tenseness and to a perverse desire to emphasize the swiftness of her decision. She hoped the other woman heard her.

"Yes, madam," in grateful appreciation, as he pulled out the bolt.

But to Helen's horror, when she saw the other end, she discovered that it had a six-inch border of glaring greens and yellows.

She gave a little gasp and stared at it in dismay.

"Oh, wait just a moment!" as the clerk started to measure it off.

Was there a faint mockery in his glance as he looked up?

"Have you anything like this without a border?" Helen asked, timidly.

"No, madam, but I will show you what we have."

Helen was thinking very fast. She had seen all the other silks as he had shown them to that woman—and there was nothing among them. She could take this and cut the border off! The clerk had placed before her several bolts and was now watching her with the same lack of expression. Plainly he was expecting another siege. Perhaps it was this that goaded Helen into saying quickly, almost defiantly:

"No, you needn't show me anything else. You may give me eight yards of this instead of six. I'll cut off the border."

He measured off the lengths and held the scissors for a moment, as though expecting her to stop him again. Then, with a triumphant swish, he ran them through the silk.

The two extra yards had cost her six dollars, but she had the silk she wanted. And after that woman had spent three-quarters of an hour and then taken only samples, it was almost worth six dollars to be able to say, in two minutes: "I'll take eight yards of this."

When a moment later Helen paid for the silk and walked out of the shop it was with a pleasing sense of conscious superiority.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

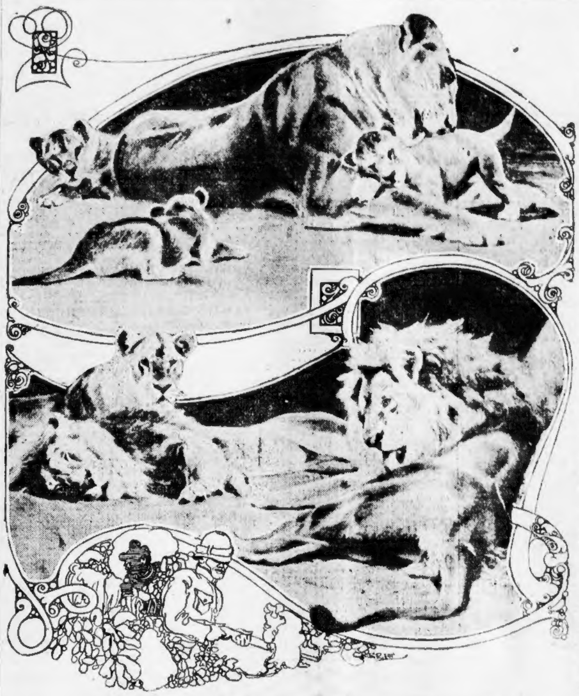

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept. and other leading druggists. Paintings That Are Amazing Europe

Why They Call Wilhelm Kuhnert World's Greatest Animal Painter

(On Top) "A Lioness and Cubs", (Bottom) "Lions Resting"

THESE pictures are of paintings by Herr Wilhelm Kuhnert, which are included among many others by the famous animal painter that are at present on exhibition in London. Crowds flock every day to the galleries of the Fine Arts Society there to gaze in wonder at the studies of animal life that have come from the brush of Kuhnert. He studied at the Berlin Academy, and was born on September 28, 1865. Kuhnert's great claim to fame, according to art experts, is that he has not been content with caged creatures, but has mastered the great essential "local atmosphere."

The Passing of Miss Tearful

By DOROTHY DIX

ONE of the most interesting and significant phases of the evolution of woman is that she is ceasing to weep. I don't know how science explains it, but it is a self-evident fact that every observing person must have noted that as women have developed backbone their tear ducts have dried up.

Time was, and not so long ago, when the very name of the feminine sex was synonymous with crying. It was woman's hereditary destiny to weep, just as it was man's to work, and she did what was expected of her by sitting down and howling whenever she came up against any of the hard propositions of life.

The modern woman has changed all of that. You hardly ever see a woman weep now. There are [illegible] just as many things to wring a woman's heart today, and just as many causes for tears as there ever were, but if she weeps, she weeps in private. It is almost as unusual and startling now to see a woman give way publicly to emotion as it is to see a man do so, and I can think of no other one thing that so emphatically marks the progress of my sex.

It measures all the distance between hysteria and reason. It marks the immeasurable difference between the spoilt child crying impotently for forbidden sweets, and the strong adult who takes what life gives with unfaltering bravery and cheerfulness.

It seems likely that women always over-valued the effectiveness of tears, anyway. Tears were supposed to always be an unanswerable argument so far as men were concerned. Unfortunately few women can weep effectively. In poetry a pearly drop, that makes a blue eye look like a violet drowned in dew, gathers slowly and rolls gently down the alabaster cheek, and the man goes down before it. In every-day life the woman who weeps gets red-eyed, her nose swells and she looks purple and apoplectic, and the man gets up, and slams the door behind him, and goes downtown until the water spout is over. In these prosaic and common-sense days weeping has played out as a fascination, and tears are a failure. No man wants to be salted down in brine as if he were a dried herring.

They Wept Too Much

The trouble with women's tears in the past has been that they wept too much, and in the wrong way. A tear as a tear is as ineffective as any other drop of salt water, yet people make the mistake of reverencing it as if weeping over a thing was going to perform some kind of a miracle.

You might weep over a starving family until you shed an ocean of tears, yet it wouldn't keep them from perishing of hunger. It is only when you begin to sob with your pocketbook that you do any good. It isn't the people who come to weep with us when we are unfortunate and poor and downcast who help us. It is those who have learned to sympathize with their bank book and personal interest and assistance.

Nothing else on earth is so plentiful and cheap and useless as tears, but until they are backed up with good deeds and money nobody has a right to attempt to sustain a reputation for charity on them. Plenty of people do. I have seen women sit up in a fashionable church and sniffle into a point lace handkerchief all through a charity sermon and then drop a plugged nickel into the contribution plate.

Then there's poverty. If all the tears women have shed over being poor had been brought to account it would make a water power that would turn the wheels of the machinery of the world. And it's all been wasted. Tears tell back no vanished dollars. Nobody ever heard of a woman lamenting herself into a fortune, yet they go making themselves perfect Niobes over their spilt milk.

I had a friend once who lost her money and who thereafter did nothing but weep. "What shall I do?" she demanded. "I shall starve." "If you would put in as much time and energy mopping a floor as you do mopping your eyes, you could make a fortune as a charwoman," I answered, brutally. She never forgave me. People never do when you tell them the truth, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that the only tears that can procure back prosperity are the tears we weep with our hands at some good, honest labor.

Sometimes I amuse myself by speculating on what an improvement it would be if mothers wept less over their wayward children and spanked more.

Shameful Tears

Sentimentalists have embalmed a mother's tears in song and story, and made them sacred, but I tell you the tears a mother sheds over an ill-raised son or daughter are shameful. There should be no cause for them, and there would be no cause for them, once in a million times, if she had done her duty. Weep with strict authority, mothers, sob with a wise upbringing while your children are little, and when they are grown you will not have to shed salt and bitter tears over sons and daughters who have brought disgrace upon you.

It has also appeared to me that women have wasted quite an unnecessary amount of tears on their husbands. For a thousand generations wives have clung to the theory that a man could be wept into all the virtues of the beatitude. When a woman had a drunken husband she opened the door for him in the early hours of the morning, and bedewed him with her tears. When she had a brutal one, she wept when he mistreated her, but she forgave him and let him go on doing it. Men don't weep any over women. They make their wives behave themselves, or else they haul them up before the divorce court, and that's why the percentage of good conduct is so largely in favor of the fair sex, and women might well copy their example.

Any way you look at it, it is a hopeful sign women have abandoned doing the baby act. It was always weak and useless. We owe it to the world to give it smiles and sunshine, not showers, and we best do our part in it when we meet the misfortunes of life with that brave attitude that nothing can daunt.

Home-Grown

THE Bishop of Richmond (Yorkshire) used to tell this story about his father:

"He was a farmer, and a nice old gentleman, too. One year he took it into his head to grow flax, so he sowed the seed, and, having a good crop, sent it away to be made into a tablecloth.

"Some time later, when seated at dinner, he remarked to a lady near him:

"'Do you know, I grew this tablecloth myself.'

"'Did you, really?' she answered, with the greatest surprise. 'How ever did you manage it?'

"'Well'—most mysteriously—'if you'll promise not to tell anyone, I'll tell you. I—planted a napkin!'"

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

Jack Spencer's Infatuation for the Widow Becomes Serious and His Wife Notices It.

MARCH 25.—I had thought constantly this morning of our evening with the widow at the station last night; of Jack Spencer's evident infatuation; of the way in which he monopolized her, and the possessive manner in which he took her to her train, though I had hoped to have that privilege; of Sally Spencer's only half-concealed distress, and of the widow's triumphant look when she left us.

She is an unscrupulous woman. So many women who are fascinating are, and she holds a grudge against Mrs. Spencer because of the efforts Sally made last Winter to prevent me from marrying.

All this made me uneasy, and knowing Jack to be weak, just as I am weak and just as all men are weak, I felt an apprehension that was almost womanish. I was not surprised during the morning to get a telephone message from Mrs. Spencer to come over for a little "plain talk," she said, and it was with a decided feeling of relief, that I assented.

He Walked In

With the privilege granted an old friend I did not stop to knock when I reached Mrs. Spencer's door, but walked in unannounced, making my way to a certain little sunny sitting room where she always spent her mornings making up her household accounts, sewing, writing letters, and engaged in similar little tasks which take up so much of a methodical woman's time, and which we men neither can comprehend nor appreciate.

She had been engaged in running a ribbon through some dainty lace-trimmed garment, but it had fallen unnoticed to the floor beside her, and with her hands lying idly on her lap she was gazing intently through the window.

I stepped behind her and looked over her head to see what so engrossed her. The window commanded a view of my back lawn and the picture at which she gazed was so pretty I did not wonder at her absorption. Richards had placed a little table on the lawn, and Manette was giving a dinner party, with Sarah Rae Hartman, four dolls, the brown-eyed pup and two kittens as her guests. The dolls were sitting bolt upright in their chairs with faces so lacking in expression that they looked like real society ladies; the two kittens on one side, not so well bred, were lapping cream from tiny saucers on the table, and the pup, on the opposite side, was barking so fiercely it became necessary for Manette to pause while feeding a doll on her lap to pacify him by sticking a cake in his mouth. His anger at the kittens, plainly because of their ill-breeding, could not be choked off by cake, and while we looked he gave one bound across the table, the kittens fled without asking to be excused, and sought shelter up the nearest tree with the pup at their heels.

I am proud of Manette for many things, and one is that she seldom cries. With her tea-table upset and her tea-party broken up, she did not give a howl like most babies, but dropped the doll baby and ran after the pup. Tompkins caught him before he had caught the kittens and restored him to Manette's arms, who punished him by putting him to bed in a doll buggy. There he lay, with his head on a pillow, his brown eyes making a plea for pardon and his pink tongue hanging out.

She Weeps

"Does life offer any greater pleasure than that?" I said to Mrs. Spencer when she had turned around and found me there. Then I noticed that her eyes were filled with tears.

"Max," she said, drawing up a chair for me, "that," looking to where Manette was tying a doll bonnet on the pup's head, preparatory to taking him for a ride, "is all there is in life worth while. The love men and women have for each other is only means to hapiness, and that is never attained unless there is a child.

"Your home, though you are a bachelor, is happier than mine because of the presence of a child. I tell you, Max, you don't know how well off you are."

"But," I argued, feeling that in some indefinable way I was put on the defensive, "there are lonesome moments even when there is a child. I am a man grown, with all a man's longing for the companionship of his peers, and baby talk does not satisfy me. I get down to Manette's size every hour in the day, and when evening comes and she has gone to bed I long for the companionship of one who talks my own language. And," growing more emphatic because of the look of disapproval in her eyes, "it is a longing that the society of men doesn't satisfy, and as good and patient as you and Jack are with me, letting me come over here every evening to forget my loneliness, it is a craving that even the companionship of two such good friends can't gratify. Oh, Sally, you are a woman, and a woman never understands!"

"No," she said sadly, "a woman never understands. And a man never understands either, and here we are, tied together for life, and neither understanding the other."

She turned toward me very suddenly. "What is Mrs. Brown's address?"

"But why——" I stammered.

"I intend to ask her here to spend a week," she replied.

"Sally," I said, "you are mad. If Jack is infatuated with the widow, why do you want to make his infatuation worse? She is gone; he will never see her again, for the Lord's sake why give him a chance to play with fire by having her here?"

"You say a woman never understands. You are wrong; it is your sex that is stupid."

"But——" I began. Then I decided it was no use. There is never any use of arguing with a woman, so I pulled a note book out of my pocket, copied Mrs. Brown's address on a card I found on the table, and handed it to her without a word.

"By the way," as if she had almost forgotten it; "Margaret Hill is coming also."

Margaret Hill! The girl I asked to be my wife, but who refused me when she learned there was a breach of promise suit pending against me. The good little Puritan, who was so good she was too good! I am sure my face showed my surprise.

"I tried to tell you at the station last night," she continued, "but you were so absorbed in the coming of the widow you refused to hear me."

"Max," abruptly changing the subject, "is a man's love ever won for all time? I won Jack Spencer's love when I was a girl twenty [illegible] ago, and I have been engaged in trying to keep it won ever since. I sometimes wonder"—a little bitterly—"if the love of a husband is worth the struggle a woman must make to hold it. It is fight, fight, fight, all the time; a fight to retain my personal charms, a fight to keep him interested, a fight to forget myself in satisfying every longing he may have, physical, mental or spiritual; a fight to give him so much of myself that he will never know satiety and will always want more; a fight to keep him from the clutches of that Other Woman always smiling like a threatening phantom in the background; and then, when I have his love, what do I possess? Something about as lasting as a soap bubble, and never worth the price!"

"Look here, Sally Spencer," I said in real alarm, for this was so unlike her, "you are getting morbid, and I won't stand for it. Come with me," drawing her from her chair, and leading her to the door.

Five minutes later we were highly honored guests at the table of Sarah Rae, who was hostess this time, each holding a kitten and a doll as a special mark of honor.

But is that so, Diary, what she said about the love of man?

POSLAM HEALS UNSIGHTLY SKIN TROUBLES

After an affected surface has been covered with Poslam the progress of the disease has been effectually checked. It cannot longer spread.

From now on an active, intense healing process is exerted, strengthened with each succeeding application, until the disease is mastered and driven away.

The uniformity and the positiveness with which Poslam over and over again accomplishes this definite work make it a dependable skin specific, the only one which should be first called to aid should eczema, acne, pimples, itch or any form of skin disorder afflict.

POSLAM SOAP improves the health, color and quality of the skin; beautifies complexions, renders the hands soft and velvety; purifies the scalp.

All druggists sell Poslam (price 50 cents) and Poslam Soap (price 25 cents). For free samples write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th Street, New York City.

EVANS' STORY OF WINNING THE $10,000 PRIZE

What would you do if you were suddenly handed a perfectly good check for $10,000, made payable to your order

You read in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN about the result of the final count in the AMERICAN'S great $40,000 contest, and the fact that the first prize of $10,000 had gone to Robert Evans of No. 174 Endicott avenue, Revere. Doubtless every one of you immediately thought of what YOU could and would have done with that sum of money had you won it, and you must have wondered what uses the winner will make of it.

For a young man to win over one thousand competitors would be considered a big feat. Mr. Evans is sixty-seven years old, yet by sheer pluck, determination and industry, he won against several hundred thousand competitors in an open contest, where the prizes went to the person who showed greatest actual results. His energy and popularity are well demonstrated by the fact that the total number of votes recorded in his favor was TWENTY-NINE MILLION, SIX HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-SIX THOUSAND, FIVE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FIVE.

Mr. Evans, who is an old-time actor, well known to the public, tells in the most modest, simple way of the fight that he made to win the capital prize offered by the AMERICAN, but it is easy to see the great happiness that his victory has brought him. He worked and worked hard, but his dominant thought is a desire to express the gratitude that he feels toward the loyal friends who cheered and encouraged him, and made his victory possible. This is his own story:

You see, my son, Robert Bruce, has lost his eyesight, and has been home with us now for five years. He is a Christian Scientist, and his faith gives him much comfort, keeping him quite happy most of the time. But I got to thinking of how much I could do for him, in many little ways, if it was possible for me to stay in off of the road and devote myself to his happiness.

When I first spoke of it to Robert, now what do you think? He tried to dissuade me, he did. He used every argument to discourage me, and he near succeeded. But there were others who told me to go ahead and they would help, so I did. And they kept their promises.

The Brotherhood of Elks is largely responsible for my success; the members of each lodge gave me such hearty support, and were so eager to enlist all of the help they could, that it was just up to me to see that their work did not go for nothing.

STOCK MARKET AND FINANCIAL NEWS

There was no change in market conditions this morning, business being quiet and the price range narrow on the whole. In the Boston market Massachusetts Gas rose more than a point in the first hour. A number of mining issues advanced. Wolverine gained a point at the opening. The Mellen stocks were dull and New Haven sold half a point lower.

The price tendency in New York was downward in the main and the volume of trading less than yesterday. There was little speculation in Europe and money conditions there remained the same.

New York Opens Irregular.

The New York market was irregular at the opening. The declines were fractional. Some low-priced railroads and a few industrials sustained fractional losses. Rock Island was a weak issue at the start. It quickly recovered its initial loss, however. There was a continuation of B. R. T. accumulation. Frisco issues were dull. After the first few minutes there was a better demand.

Canadian Pacific was the weakest of the prominent stocks, opening more than a point lower. It was sold in Berlin, which had an adverse effect in London before trading began in New York. The latter market was also influenced by the listlessness on the London exchange.

Amalgamated, which began ⅛ higher, soon lost its gain and declined fractionally. Among the other declines were American Can, ⅜; American Smelting, ⅛; Chino Copper, ¼; Erie, ¼; New York Central, ⅛; Union Pacific, ⅜, and Steel common, ½. Southern Pacific began ¼ up, but soon receded. Reading declined fractionally, after opening unchanged, but soon recovered.

The Curb was steady.

Americans were dull in London.

Accused President Wilson.

There is a good deal of bitterness apparently over President Wilson's attitude in regard to free sugar. On account of the extent of sugar interests in Louisiana many Democrats have always been in favor of the protective principle so far as this article was concerned. But the Wilson administration has not shown any more disposition to protect Louisiana sugar than Massachusetts shoes, and now the President has been charged, a Washington dispatch says, by a member of the Democratic National Committee with having misled delegates to the Baltimore convention in order to bring him votes sufficient to nominate.

"It was stated without qualification that William F. McCombs, political manager of Wilson, went to New Orleans, summoned Democratic leaders to a conference and pledged the word of Wilson that if he were nominated sugar interests would be protected in any tariff bill the Democrats might pass.

"This statement, made very explicitly to Senators by a man whose honesty and personal integrity no man in the Democratic party can deny filled Senators with amazement."

Reform Bills Signed.

Governor Sulzer has signed the last two of the stock exchange reform bills passed by the New York Legislature during the recent period of "blue sky legislation." One provides that trading by brokers against customers' orders in stocks, bonds or other evidences of debt of a corporation, company or association, shall constitute a felony.

The other requires brokers to deliver to customers memoranda describing the securities purchased and sold, also giving the name of the person or corporation from which they were purchased or to which they were sold, together with the time when the transaction took place.

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market was weaker when it opened, spot and futures each being 3s. 9d. lower.

Custom House return for this month up to last night give copper exports as totalling 23,390 tons.

A Houghton special dispatch reads: "The drift at the end of the crosscut on the 650-foot level of Indiana is in good copper which first showed last Friday. The showing is believed to be the rich Indiana lode from which rich cores were taken in diamond drilling."

It is said that all American producers have lowered their quotations in the foreign market from 15.90 cents a pound, to 15 7-8, the latter being the figure obtaining on this side of the Atlantic. It is said that the readjustment was made to equalize price conditions. It looks as if spot demand had slackened abroad and that foreigners no longer feel obliged to pay any more for the metal than American consumers do.

Financial News in Brief.

It is estimated that if the law compelling the Pennsylvania to abolish all grade crossings on its line in Jersey at its own expense is passed it will cost the road $6,000,000 or more.

The Baltimore & Ohio reports for April last that its net operating revenue decreased $868,361 and that its total operating expenses increased $846,462. For the ten months ending with April the net operating revenue increased $113,-320. The operating revenue for the long period increased $7,546,755 and operating expenses $7,433,435. These figures do not include outside operations which, as estimated, will show a deficit in net for April of $70,000, compared with a deficit of $65,316.63 for the same month last year.

The Department of Agriculture now estimates that the area planted in cotton in this country last year was 34,766,000 acres instead of 34,097,000 as was previously estimated.

The New York subtreasury gained $900,000 from the banks yesterday, and has gained $2,748,000 since Friday.

G. O. P. QUARTERS ARE UNDER 'JIMMY' REYNOLDS' HAT

WASHINGTON, May 20.—James B. Reynolds, secretary of the Republican National Committee, arrived in town today to prepare for the meeting of the executive committee on Saturday.

One of the first men whom Mr. Reynolds met was "Tom" Pence, in charge of the Democratic National organization headquarters. The two are old friends, although political opponents.

"Hello," said Pence in greeting, "where's your office?"

"Under my hat," snapped Reynolds.

$8,289,976 EXPRESS COMPANY PROFIT

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Express companies for the year 1912 did a total business of $81,545,658, with expenses aggregating $73,255,682, leaving a total net revenue of $8,289,976, according to a statement made by the Interstate Commerce Commission today. Dividends declared from current income amounted to $4,625,832 and from surplus $2,823,785. The Pullman Car Company in reports to the commission placed its total business for the year 1912 at $37,090,414, with expenses amounting to $26,256,695.

PLAN CELEBRATION FOR HOLLIS HALL

Elaborate plans are under way for the Hollis Hall celebration at Harvard June 14. A dinner, at which Presidents Lowell and Eliot, both former lodgers at Hollis Hall, are to speak, is the chief feature, while Professor G. P. Baker has written and agreed to superintend a pageant which shall embody the history of the hall. This is the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the dormitory, the oldest in the Harvard yard.

ESSAD PACHA IS SLAIN BY RIVAL

VIENNA, May 20.—Essad Pacha, former Turkish commander of Scutari, who recently proclaimed himself King of Albania, has been assassinated by followers of Riza Bey, another Turkish general, according to a telegram received by the Reichspost today.

LOWELL OFFICER'S CASE CONTINUED

LOWELL, May 20.—Policeman Cornelius O'Keefe was arraigned today on a charge of assaulting John W. Stocks, who claimed that he was a bystander at a fight. The case was continued until tomorrow.

LAST WEEK OF BARGAIN OFFER OF CYCLOPEDIA

Only a few days more in which to take advantage of the AMERICAN'S great book bargain, for the sale positively ends this week.

On account of many of our readers being unable to present their coupons on the two days (Friday and Saturday), heretofore reserved for distribution, coupons may be presented any day during this final week. Clip the cyclopedia coupon printed in another column today and present it any time this week, but don't put it off too long, for the supply of sets may not hold out and the distribution positively ends when the present supply is exhausted.

Everybody's Cyclopedia is the most useful set of books on earth. It consists of five octavo volumes, bound in English cloth, magnificently illustrated throughout, and regularly sells for $12. During this final week $1.98 and a coupon will get the complete set. Surely this is an unusual book bargain.

See the announcement elsewhere in this issue and present the coupon today at any of the points of distribution.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

One of the best crossing policemen in Boston and one brought much to the notice of the motor drivers is the officer stationed on Boylston street at Park square. A well known motorist said today:

"This crossing gives you a pretty good idea of what the drivers have to contend with. The policeman here is fair and capable. He has right and might on his side when it comes to a driver ignoring his signals—but what of the pedestrian?

"The pedestrian darts between teams and automobiles and we drivers are the sufferers. The idea of educating the pedestrians to a point wherein they will be more cautious is an excellent one, and should receive the support of other organizations. The first thing is to establish traffic rules that will apply to all."

Harry F. Grant, who is to drive a foreign car in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial Day, is in New York, where his car is expected to arrive today. It will be impossible for Grant to get any practice on the speedway much before Friday.

Triple honors fell to the six-cylinder Alco touring car, which won the West Hudson and Catskill reliability contest May 14-15. The car driven by J. G. Reilly captured the prize for reliability, finished the 265-mile tour with a perfect score and was awarded the silver plaque in the hill climbing competition.

The final results in reliability showed that out of a possible 1,000 points the Alco car secured 928. The second best car in the contest got 907 points. The machine shot up the mountain at Haines Falls in 3 minutes and 23 1-5 seconds, a distance of 1.1 miles, with an average grade of 14 per cent. and in some places as great as 22 per cent.

Fire Commissioner Cole has just equipped his new Model 30 Buick with a set of Truffault-Hartford shock absorbers. He was so pleased with them that Superintendent Rylington has equipped his Model 16 Buick, which has run over 100,-000 miles.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY—In the matter of the application of The Prudential Insurance Company of America for the acquirement of its capital stock for the benefit of its policyholders. Order fixing hearing on Application for Appointment of Appraisers.

It appearing to the Court that The Prudential Insurance Company of America has heretofore filed its duly verified petition, from which it appears that the said petitioner is a stock life insurance corporation, incorporated by the State of New Jersey, and that the Board of Directors of said Company have determined that it would be conducive to the welfare of the corporation and in the interests of the policyholders thereof to change the corporation from a stock life insurance corporation to a mutual life insurance corporation, and said corporation now applying to the Chancellor to appoint two or more disinterested persons to appraise the value of the capital stock of the said corporation, and also to appoint one or more counsel to represent the policyholders before such appraisers and in such further proceedings as may be taken under or in pursuance of said petition.

It is, therefore, on this twenty-second day of April, A. D., 1913, on motion of Edward D. Duffield, Solicitor of said petitioner, ORDERED that said application be heard by the Chancellor at the State House in the City of Trenton on the tenth day of June, 1913, at ten thirty o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, at which time and place the Chancellor will hear all parties in interest who may then appear.

It is further ordered that notice of such hearing shall be given to the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of this State by serving a copy of this order upon him within fifteen days from the making thereof, and that notice of said application be given to the stockholders of said corporation by mailing a copy of this order to each of said stockholders at his postoffice address, as the same appears upon the books of the said corporation, within fifteen days from the date hereof; and that notice of said application be given to the policyholders of the said corporation by publishing a copy of this order in one or more newspapers printed and published in the capital of each and every State of the United States in which the corporation does business, and in a newspaper printed and published in the cities of Edmonton, Alberta; Victoria, British Columbia; Winnipeg, Manitoba; Fredericton, New Brunswick; Halifax, Nova Scotia; Toronto, Ontario; Quebec, Quebec; and Regina, Saskatchewan, in the Dominion of Canada, once a week for at least four weeks, the first publication to be made within fifteen days from the date hereof. In case no newspaper is published in the capitals of said States of the United States, then said publication may be made in a newspaper having a general circulation within said States.

The Common Sense of Battleships

The question of an "ample navy" is now before the people in a new light.

Apathy and ignorance no longer becloud the issue. The incidents of the last few weeks have made plain and impressive the necessity, for which the AMERICAN has earnestly and persistently fought.

It is not a question at this moment of war with Japan or any other nation. It is a question of being prepared for any emergency in our national life.

No people with intelligence and patriotism can fail to demand this preparedness. No representations of integrity and loyalty can fail to answer this demand.

It has been brought home to every American that our country is a part of the great world.

That it is subject to the jealousies, the competitions, the wars of nations.

If we compose our trouble with Japan today it may break out tomorrow or next year. If Japan retires as a contestant for the mastery of the Pacific Ocean, there are others to compete. In the fierce activity of overcrowded nations for room to colonize their surplus people, there is perpetual unrest.

In the almost arrogant exclusiveness of our Monroe Doctrine there is a perpetual challenge to freedom of movement among other nations. In the possession and power of the Panama Canal there is a challenge to the cupidity and commercial self-preservation of all great commercial countries.

We know this now. We have been brought face to face with war. We know that we are no more or less than other nations in our exemption from war. We know that the only nation immune from war is England. We also know why England has had no invaders for four hundred years.

And so in plain, natural common sense our Congressmen must come to realize that we must have a greater navy. We must have battleships. Not for aggressive war, but for effective defense. As long as other nations build, we must outbuild other nations, because we are better able to build, and need more to build.

When other nations make plain that they are willing for universal peace, we are willing to lead all nations in the movement for disarmament and arbitration.

But it is the first plain patriotic duty of the Sixty-third Congress to provide for the national defense in battleships that will give us our safe and proper place among nations.

How Parents Spoil Their Children

Thousands of Ways—We Mention One.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

This editorial is written in response to the request of a reader. He asks us to point out the harm that parents do by giving conflicting orders to children.

Many thoughtless fathers and mothers bewilder their children and hinder their development in the way complained of.

In the system of laws which govern grown men the first essential is UNITY of law. If laws should conflict, no man would be expected to live or to develop properly under them.

The will and the instructions of the parents are the LAWS which govern children.

The child is unfortunate whose parents are whimsical. Still more unfortunate is the child whose father and mother disagree on important points—one saying "You shall do that," another "You shall not do that"—one ordering a certain thing, the other forbidding it.

The idea of education is first of all to develop what is IN the child, bringing out what is good in him, with as little oppression and coercion as possible from without. The child should be controlled mainly by making him feel personally the uncomfortable results of a harmful action.

Nature corrects us grown children solely by making us suffer the consequences of our own deeds. Children should be corrected in the same way—not arbitrarily, not by threats, but through their reason, their sense of justice, and their respect for inevitable consequences.

Above all, the child should be made thoroughly to respect laws and rules. There should be no such thing as conflict between parents. A single order from a father contradicted by a mother is enough to destroy all respect for parental authority.

Nationalizing a Great Reform

The woman suffrage movement can prevail and accomplish its purpose without an amendment to the Federal Constitution. Nevertheless it is good news that the Senate Committee on Woman Suffrage has decided to report favorably on Senator Chamberlain's resolution.

A joint resolution of the two houses of Congress—submitting to the States the question whether the political equality of women with men ought not to be an article of the organic law of the land—will give the reform a national character and prominence that it cannot so readily acquire by any other means. Thenceforth it will be impossible for any political party to ignore the issue—whether in State or national elections.

The case is parallel with that of the election of United States Senators by the people. That movement also would in process of time have prevailed everywhere without an amendment to the Federal Constitution. But the movement was immensely accelerated by the agitation for the amendment.

Woman suffrage is not a local issue. It is broadly human and fundamentally democratic.

There is no good reason why Senators and Representatives—even those opposed to the reform—should not support the proposed joint resolution and so give the conscience and intelligence of the whole country a fair chance to pass upon the subject.

Why Japanese Settlers Cannot Be Tolerated

By PERCY F. MONTGOMERY

Author of "The Commercial Supremacy of the Pacific:" Written for the AMERICAN.

AN impressive lesson may be learned by a study of the British government's policy in the matter of Japanese immigration. The sun never sets upon the British flag, and in the Pacific, Australia, on one side of the world, has barred Japan, and Canada, on the other side of the world, has barred Japan. Australia had her trouble with Japan years ago. Canada's problem is a matter of yesterday's history and the tale of the Vancouver riots. Drastic, direct and efficient legislation by the British has removed from the diplomacy of that nation any question of Japan's "national honor" and has blocked the influx of Japanese into British territory without a protest from the Japanese.

The most competent study of immigration ever made in history is recorded in the "Dillingham Commission's Report." This report says:

> During the last fifty years the most vital phase of the Australian immigration situation has been the exclusion of Asiatics. The colonies have fought this immigration with entrance fees, and fines, limitations of the number of passengers in a given tonnage of ships, educational tests and absolute prohibition.

Ever since the discovery of gold in the Victorian fields of Australia in 1851, Asiatics have tried to flow into Australia. As early as 1855 restrictive legislation was enacted.

For a "White Australia"

The slogan of "A White Australia" was raised many years ago and the present law is the result. This law, which is known as the Commonwealth Immigration Restriction Act, of 1901, amended and now operative, provides an educational test for all applicants. This test consists of writing in a European language, at the dictation of an Australian immigration officer, a total of fifty words. Between the years 1902 and 1907 nineteen Japanese tried this test and nineteen of them were deported.

The total number of Japanese allowed to enter Australian territory by special permission of the Governor-General during the years 1902 to 1908 was 3,224.

Coming closer home we find Canada's disposition of the question equally illuminating. In 1901 but six Japanese came to Canada. The next year none came, and the next year and the next year. And then, in 1905, there landed in British Columbia a total of 354 Japanese. These people wrote home. In the next twelve months, or 1906, Japanese to the number of 1,922 landed in Pacific Canada. In 1907 the number increased to 2,402. In 1908 it rose to 7,601 for the first nine months. Then the storm broke. British Columbia, occupying a position with reference to Canada as a whole which is similar to California's geographical relation to the total United States mainland territory, bore the forefront of this fight. Each year, from 1900 on the Provincial legislative body enacted an educational test law similar to that of Australia. The first one was disallowed in 1901 by Earl Minto, Governor-General of Canada. And subsequent ones were disallowed.

How Canada Excluded Them

Then the people took a hand. The staid and sober "Briton" went down to the Japanese quarter at Vancouver and tried to wipe it out overnight. A Royal Commission was appointed and a Royal Commissioner was sent to find out what was wrong. In his report, made at Ottawa, in 1908, this commissioner, W. L. Mackenzie King, C. M. G., says:

> Assuming, however, that 7,500 was the total Japanese population in the beginning of the year (1905), it is not a matter of surprise that with the arrival at their shore of 8,125 Japanese in the ten months following, the people of British Columbia, and more especially the people of Vancouver, should have experienced some concern, and that as vessel after vessel landed an ever increasing number until in fewer months than it had taken years to bring the Japanese population of British Columbia up to what it was, this total was exceeded by new arrivals, that consternation should have been felt in many quarters. If anything more were needed to occasion unrest, it was to be found in the simultaneous arrival from the Orient of Hindus by the hundreds and Chinese in larger numbers than those of immediately preceding years. It was an alarm at numbers and the cry of a white Canada was raised.

The result of this investigation is found in Section 38 (c) of the present immigration law of the Dominion, which says in part that the officials of the Dominion government have the right to:

> * * * prohibit for a stated period, or permanently, the landing in Canada, or the landing at any specified port of entry in Canada, of immigrants belonging to any race deemed unsuited to the climate or requirement of Canada, or of immigrants of any specified class, occupation, or character.

"Races That Cannot Mix"

The exclusion of Japanese under this clause has resulted in a reduction of the number to 495 in 1909 and 147 in 1910, which is a fair indication of what an immigration law may accomplish.

Since the fundamental principle of the Dominion's immigration policy has been and is "the securing of agriculturists," the exclusion of Japanese agriculturists leaves no room for controversy as to discrimination against them by the British government.

The Japanese, crowded out at home, have spread over the waters of the Pacific to distant lands for more than half a century. East they have gone, and west they have gone, and each time they have met the white man there has been strife.

The report of Honorable Mackenzie King, which is herein cited, leaves nothing to the imagination and removes any ground for specious argument favoring the association of races which will not assimilate.

HOMESICK

By HELEN WASHER

ALL day the wind has whispered tales about the old home range,
And I, a lonely maverick, am crying for a change.
Shall we pull up our picket pins, and coil the cantle rope,
Then hit the trail and follow it adown the western slope?
This city life may be all right for those whose eyes are blind,
Or those who never see beyond the daily, dulling grind.
But herding round a snubbing post from eight till half past five,
Has never kept the outdoor heart of vagabonds alive.
Here every man is for himself, the devil for them all;
And few have pity for the weak who by the wayside fall.
They're branded with the city's iron, in body, heart and soul;
On every hand I see them strive, with money for their goal.
But outward where the sun goes down is room for you and me,
And there the men are what their God intended they should be.
This old corral is far too small for my six feet of brawn,
So I shall take the Western trail before another dawn.
And all I ask of future years is that my feet may stray
Along some sun-kissed range until the final roundup day.
